Tennessean Will Resign Seat to Lead Fight Against Truman and Party

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Tennessee's graying, soft-spoken B. Carroll Reece, 56-year-old veteran of 26 years in Congress, yesterday was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Turning South for a chairman for the second time in GOP history, the committee named Reece on the third ballot of a sprightly, four-way contest. Opponents promptly made the choice "unanimous."

Reece, who succeeds retiring Chairman Herbert Brownell, jr., announced he will resign his House seat to devote his full time to the GOP drive to elect a Republican House in November and a GOP President in 1948.

Administration Under Attack

His election capped a day of continuous GOP sessions, mostly spent in pouring hot lead on the Truman Administration.

Only when committeemen scuffled heatedly over the chairmanship, uncovering some deep-seated GOP differences, did the attack on the Administration let up.

Brownell called Harry Truman "the weakest President since Pierce" and charged Democratic "blundering" has delayed reconversion six months.

Illinois' James S. Kemper, retiring Republican campaign chairman, announced a congressional campaign budget of $1,925,000, against $750,000 sought last year.

The GOP's own party differences cropped out when the committee finally got around to the balloting.

With the rumored support of Thomas E. Dewey, former Senator John A. Danaher of Connecticut, the committee's paid ($20,000 a year) liaison man with congressional Republicans, was put in nomination.

Supporters of the late Wendell Willkie came up with the name of John W. Haynes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, who headed the Democrats for Willkie movement in 1948.

Reece, an old guard favorite who has made no 1948 commitments, played his trump card at the start.

Reese Jumps in Lead

His name was placed in nomination by the man first given the best chance to beat him—Ohio's Representative J. Clarence Brown, a John Bricker supporter.

On the first ballot, Reece came within seven ballots of victory. Against 53 votes needed for victory, Reece received 46, Danaher 31 and Hanes 21. Three committeemen voted for Nebraska's Senator Kenneth S. Wherry, though his name wasn't put in nomination.

Brownell ordered a second ballot. Again Reece received 46 votes and Danaher, 31. Hanes climbed from 21 to 22. Wherry dropped to 2.

On the third ballot Reece went over, with 58 votes. Danaher dropped to 22, as Illinois' Werner Schroeder led the shift of Danaher strength to Reece. Hanes dropped back to 21.

Senate Confirms Harriman as Envoy To Great Britain

The Senate unanimously confirmed yesterday the nomination of W. Averell Harriman to be Ambassador to Great Britain.

Meanwhile it was announced that President Truman has accepted the resignation of Lithgow Osborne, Ambassador to Norway, effective May 1.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said the President "regretfully" accepted the resignation after Osborne expressed "a strong desire" to return to the United States.

Osborne was named ambassador shortly before the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman wrote Osborne praising his work, Ross said, and expressing his "best wishes."

Ruins in Indian Said to Be Roman

Paris, April 1 (U.P.).—Important archeological discoveries purporting to extend the scope of the Roman empire to the east coast of India were reported tonight from Pondicherry, French India. Traces of a Roman town dating to the second century before Christ were found near the gates of Pondicherry.

Ex-Colonel, Wife Found Shot to Death

He Reportedly Worked On A-Bomb Secrets; Child, 12, Near Death

A discharged Army officer who was said to have worked on atom bomb secrets, and his wife were found dead yesterday after a triple shooting in their home at 1521 Kalmia rd. nw.

Their 12-year-old daughter, who had lain two days in the same room with a bullet wound in her head, was near death last night.

Paul P. Stoutenburgh, a former lieutenant colonel, and his wife, Anna, both 44, were found shot to death in the second-floor bedroom of their daughter, Mary Alice, after relatives and police broke into the house.

The child, found unconscious on the floor of her room, was rushed to Walter Reed Hospital. Doctors had little hope for her survival.

Police found a .25-caliber pistol near the hand of Stoutenburgh, whose body lay across the bed, a bullet wound in the right temple.

The body of Mrs. Stoutenburgh lay face-down on the floor near the door. A bullet had entered the back of her head and emerged from the front of her skull.

The child was found breathing heavily on the other side of the bed, a bullet wound in her right temple. All were clad in their night clothes.

Alarmed by Silence

The three were discovered about 11 a. m. when relatives became alarmed by the pall of silence which had hung over the home

Four Holdups, Burglary Net Thieves $2762

1-Legged Man Among Victims as District's Crime Flurry Goes On Washington's weekend crime flurry continued yesterday as four early-morning holdups and a burglary netted $2762.

Hoodlums gathered up more than $1000 in weekend forays and sent two victims to hospitals with possible skull fractures.

The total, from late Saturday night to last night:

Seven robberies, four of them armed, and three burglaries.

One of yesterday's armed robberies in which a filling station gave up $92 at gun-point, gave police another vague clue in the four-day-old Virginia slaying of O. J. Beckerman, 50, Purcellville, Va.

Two men, one dressed in a Marine lieutenant's uniform, the other in an Army overcoat, held up and robbed Kermit Enman, 808 C st. st., night attendant at a filling station at 2830 Sherman ave. nw. about 12:40 a. m. Police said the two answered the general description of the men linked with the Beckerman slaying.

Beckerman was found stabbed to death on a lonely side road 10 miles south of Fredericksburg, Va. Thursday. His slayers took his automobile, which later was spotted by a Washington policeman, but made a get-away.

Another victim of robbers was a one-legged man who lost $1692 which he had hidden in his artificial leg. Deskin E. Brown, 45, of 623 Pennsylvania ave. nw, told

Bowie Opener Sets Crowd, Betting Marks

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., April 1.—A record opening day crowd, estimated at 21,000, bet a record of $1,004,686 as Bowie returned to the Maryland turf parade this afternoon after being idle since 1942. It was a jamboree.

Every corner of the racing plant was jammed with would-be spectators; the totalizator was jammed with greenbacks; the roads were jammed with traffic; the results board was jammed with big payoffs and many hopeful bettors had windows jammed down in their faces.

Bowie got under way like a monetary conference. Perhaps a third of the persons who finally took part in the sport were still on the way or trying to get in when W. W. Waters' Late Time crossed the finish line in the first race to the tune of an across-the-board payoff of $100.20, $30.90 and $11.70.

The cries of the successful long-shot players had hardly died down before J. Silvester's Goldie's Sugar got up to win a photo finish in the second race and returned to her scattered backers $217.70 to win, $115.10 to place and $46.80 to show. Then 23 holders of the winning daily double ticket stepped up to collect a $901 daily double mutuel, probably bemoaning the fact that a parlay of the two horses figured about $10,500.

One of the lucky daily double winners said: "It might have been April Fool's Day for some people but not for me. I always play the numbers of the date and the combination was 4 and 1, this being the first day of the fourth month."

The prices simmered down during the afternoon but there were other big mutuels, including one of $25.20 on M. Gilbert's Grey Flares, winner of the sixth race, and $36 to win on the Harrimont Stable's Sorrowful in the seventh race.

The favorite players had a few innings, their chief success coming in the deay's feature race.

U. S. Prepares To Move Wheat Off Farms

Growers Would Get Certificates Insuring Price Boost Benefits

By Christine Sadler
Post Reporter

A Government purchase plan to get wheat off the farms and onto relief ships probably will be announced this week by the Department of Agriculture.

Under it, the wheat owner would be given certificates which could be cashed at a later date. If wheat prices increased between date of the sale and date of the certificate's redemption, he would get the increase.

Provisions also may be made for the Government to take possession of the wheat at the farm, thus relieving the farmer of transportation trouble.

How much such a program would cost is variously estimated. It would depend on how much wheat "can be brought out of hiding" and on how much wheat prices go up between now and June 30. If the Pace bill wins, it alone would add around 50 cents a bushel, officials say. The Price Control Act may be amended in such a way that increases are forced not only for wheat, but for all farm products.

In any event, the parity price of wheat is advancing as a result of recent wage increases and resulting higher industrial prices. OPA ceilings on food products must be adjusted always to allow for increases in parity—which is the formula for establishing a "fair" relationship between agricultural and industrial prices.

Assured of higher prices the longer they wait, wheat onwers have slowed their sales considerably—even since the Famine Emergency Committee was formed and a 120-day crisis in the world food picture proclaimed.

Both Henry Morgenthau, jr., Former Secretary of the Treasury, and Fiorella LaGuardia, new director general of UNRRA, have urged

Atom Control Compromise Is Due Today

Vandenberg Plans Revised Formula To Suit Opponents Of Military Board

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A compromise solution to the controversy over civilian versus military control of atomic energy will probably be presented this morning to the special Senate committee drafting legislation on the subject.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) told reporters yesterday that he hoped to have a revised formula today which would satisfy the scientists and other groups fighting his original proposal for a military liaison board.

Meantime, Senator Brian McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the committee, said he hoped to have drafted legislation completed to bring to the Senate floor some time this week. McMahon discussed the legislation yesterday with President Truman.

Substitute for Amendment

Vandenberg's new proposal, it was learned, is a substitute for the amendment he offered some weeks ago which was adopted by the committee in a 10-1 vote. The amendment was bitterly condemned by scientific and citizen groups on grounds that it gave too much control to the armed services. It was alleged that the measure gave the Army and Navy what amounted to veto powers over all decisions of a civilian control commission set up by the basic legislation.

In consultation with various scientists, Vandenberg has adjusted the wording of his amendment so that the military liaison board will not be appointed by the President and will not have direct appeal to him.

Responsible to Secretaries

Instead, it will be responsible to the Secretaries of War and Navy. These Cabinet officers, rather than the board itself, can present controversial issues to the President for his decision.

The new proposal obligates the civilian commission to keep the military group informed of all matters of military consequence which it is considering. The liaison board has the authority to make written recommendations to the commission on military matters.

Finally, if the military group concludes that any commission action runs counter to the responsibilities of the War or Navy Departments, it may refer the action to the Secretaries of those departments. Either Secretary may refer the question to the President for final decision.

Scientists and other organized groups who fought the original Vandenberg amendment are thought to feel that the compromise may still be an undue restriction on the civilian control commission. Nevertheless, they are said to feel that it is preferable to the former proposal.

Consultant Group Heard

The matter was not discussed yesterday at the Senate Committee, it was understood. Instead, the proceedings were given over to hearing the five-man consultant group which drafted the State De-

Iran Gives U.N. Delegate Full Support

New York, April 1 (AP).—The government of Iran gave unqualified support to its ambassador here today amid mounting speculation over Moscow's reaction to the request of the United Nations Security Council for a full report on the Iranian issue.

Iran's statement, communicated directly from Premier Almed Qavam to Secretary-General Trygve Lie, apparently was in response to earlier Russian claims that Ambassador Hussein Ala was not familiar with latest developments. Ala presented Iran's side to the Council last week immediately after Russia's dramatic walkout.

Spokesmen made it clear that the statement was not Iran's answer to the Council's appeal for a full report under the joint request to Moscow and Tehran. That reply, an official of the Iranian office said, probably would be received late tonight or early tomorrow.

There was no indication here or in Moscow as to Russia's next step in view of the Wednesday morning deadline on the bid for information. Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko remained in the city, but refused to answer queries.

In his message, Premier Qavam said:

"Hussein Ala has been and continues to be fully accredited and

Court Upholds Right to Split Big Utilities

Supports Congress And SEC in Case of North American Co.

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld the power of Congress to break up the Nation's public utility empires into regional units.

Persons whose constitutional rights are violated were handed a strong new weapon by another ruling, which said they may sue for damages in Federal courts.

Justice Murphy spoke for five of his colleagues in turning down the appeal of North American Co. against section 11-b—the "death sentence" clause—of the Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

Must Obey Order

North American now must obey an order of the Securities and Exchange Commission to get rid of its two-and-a-third-billion-dollar utility system, which runs vast companies in 17 States and the District of Columbia. North American must divest itself of its $10,606,194 of common stock of Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Just as much affected are the other great utility systems of the country. But they evidently expected the decision and have plans to split their empires into provinces as the law requires. The stock market hardly wavered yesterday. Utilities generally bobbed up a little.

Congress passed the "death sentence" clause 11 years ago, after finding that huge utility systems may rise from promoters' dreams

Heavy Toll Indicated In Undersea Earthquake

BULLETIN

Honolulu, April 1 (AP).—The Coast Guard warned at noon today that a new tidal wave may be expected to hit the Hawaiian Islands about 1:30 p. m. (7 p. m. EST). Radio warnings were issued to all residents of northern beaches of the islands to evacuate immediately to higher ground.

Honolulu, T. H., April 1 (U.P.).—The American Liberty ship Brigham Victory out of Puget Sound, Wash., flashed word today that she was "trapped" by the tidal wave between the breakwater and the dock at Hilo, Hawaii.

The message read: "Hilo tidal wave. Men killed. Docks warehouses destroyed. We are trapped between breakwater and dock."

By the Associated Press

Colossal waves generated by a submarine earthquake of "world-shaking" character agitated the Pacific Ocean Monday.

Traveling with airplane speed across vast distances, it hurled death and destruction on shorelines in Hawaii, Alaska and central California.

The Navy late Monday warned north Pacific shipping to be prepared for 90 to 100-foot waves following a sea of "destructive magnitude" at Unimak near the tip of the Alaska Peninsula.

A heavy death toll was indicated as early and incomplete reports told of an Alaskan lighthouse station overwhelmed with loss of all personnel—believed to have been five men—of 26 known deal and missing in the Hawaiian Islands and others probably swept away, and of the death of one Californian seized by a huge wave and carried out to sea.

Every Island Hit

Every island in the Hawaiian group was hit and widespread property damage was reported, especially at Hilo, on the island of Hawaii. There a ship was torn from its moorings, buildings on the seaward side of the main street were damaged and a bridge was wrecked. One large structure was swept off its foundations.

Terrified witnesses said the waves ranged up to 25 feet above high-tide marks. Cars on coastal roads were engulfed by tons of hurtling water.

Little East Island, on French Frigate Shoal 450 miles northwest of Honolulu, was completely overwhelmed, the Coast Guard reported. The fate of its small naval garrison was unknown.

Heavy damage was reported from Hawaii, Maui, Kaui and the leper colony Island of Molokai, where several beach homes were washed out to sea and lowland residents fled to higher ground.

Douglas Boswell of the Hilo Tribune-Herald said 10 persons were killed in Hilo and 8 mainland school teachers were missing at sea.

Major damage on Maui centered

Jitterburg Sane Compared to New Dance in England

London, April 1 (U.P.).—The Daily Mirror today published a photographic report of a new English dance in which the couples "dance on their backs" while lying on the floor.

The photo shows a couple lying side by side beneath an apparatus resembling a high jump cross bar. The couples try to dance under the bar as it is gradually lowered, the Mirror explained. The winners are the boy and girl who "dance" under the bar at its lowest.

The Mirror described the dance as "crazier than the jitterbug."

Ex-Miner and Industrialist Named Coal Strike Conciliator

By the Associated Press

A gaunt gray man who still limps slightly from a mine accident that drove him out of the coal digger's trade undertook yesterday to conciliate the dispute that shut down the nation's bituminous mines last night.

He is 62-year-old Paul W. Fuller of Akron, Ohio, not only a former miner but also a one-time international representative of the United Mine Workers, disputants in the shutdown. Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach assigned him especially to the coal conciliation task.

Fuller's background came as something of a shock to some soft coal operators when the Labor Department put out a biographical release on him shortly before he undertook efforts to get the two sides together. Others, however, were more familiar with his career, and recalled that he has been in industry management too—in steel mills and machine manufacture.

Fuller, who recently has been special mediator for the rubber industry, arrived from Akron yesterday and talked more than an hour with Schwellenbach and Edgar L. Warren, chief of the United States Conciliation Service.

Then he went to the Shoreham Hotel where the coal talks are being held, and conferred separately with the committees of operators and United Mine Workers.

Resumption of the negotiations between John L. Lewis, UMW chief, and the coal men had been delayed to permit Fuller to acquaint himself with details of Lewis' nine general demands and the operators' response to date.

Chief among the UMW president's proposals this year is creation of a health and welfare fund—although he has not yet suggested how that fund should be raised—and for improved health and safety conditions in the mines.

In support of these major de-

After Industry Signs Contract

AFL Teamsters End Tie-up Of 63 California Canneries

San Francisco, April 1 (AP).—AFL teamsters today brought to an end their month-old blockade of 63 northern California canneries, which Saturday signed a contract with AFL cannery workers in defiance of the National Labor Relations Board.

The CIO California Cannery Council in San Jose voted to disregard any exclusive bargaining contracts between the AFL and processors, and called upon the NLRB to apply for a court order to set aside the contract.

The employers signed up with the AFL, with which they had contracts which expired March 1, after announcing "the crops will not wait" on settlement of the deadlocked AFL-CIO bargaining dispute by the NLRB. The northern California canneries process about a third of the Nation's fruit and vegetable pack.

Einar Mohn, AFL union representative, estimated 9000 cannery workers reported to jobs today as a result of the removal of the Teamsters' blockade. He said only AFL members would be permitted to work in plants included in the contract.

Strike Threat Diminishes

Milk Producers Ask Increase In Price to Meet Rising Costs

Washington area milk producers yesterday asked the Department of Agriculture for upward price adjustments to offset increasing costs of production.

At the same time likelihood of a work stoppage by 1700 local milk drivers diminished when AFL union leaders and company representatives agreed to reopen contract negotiations.

Company and union officials who met yesterday at the Labor Department with U. S. Conciliator Gilbert McCutcheon said they had "made considerable progress toward settling the dispute."

If the price boosts asked by Washington farmers are granted and passed on to consumers, the average cost of milk will be upped 2 cents a quart, the farmers said.

The Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, whose members directly furnish more than three quarters of the 175,000 gallons of milk used here daily, specifically sought:

1. An increase of 55 cents per 100 pounds in Class I milk, from $4.05 to $4.60, plus additional increases to offset any reductions in Government subsidies.

2. Increase in price of Class II milk equal in amount to any proposed subsidy reductions.

The average Governnmnent subsidy paid producers last year was 62 cents for every 100 pounds, or about 2 cents a quart. This subsidy expires May 30, but Agriculture officials said that it would probably be continued.

At the public price hearing at the department, attended by more than 200 operators of nearby Maryland and Virginia farms, the association maintained that milk production costs have risen 100 per cent from January, 1941, to March of this year.

Total returns to the farmers, however, have increased only 62 per cent, it was stated.

To support their claims for price increases, the farmers said that

Friction Seen Ended If Reds Leave Iran

GOP Chief Is Quite a Fighting Man

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Representative Carroll Reece, of Johnson City, Tenn., new chairman of the Republican National Committee, goes into the 1946 campaign with the battle cry, "Restore our Government to the people."

He is quite a warrior, this Southerner with the mountaineer's high cheek bones and eyes. In his lapel are the symbols of three decorations—the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal and the Purple Heart.

Reece won them in France in 1917-18, when he commanded an infantry battalion of the famed Twenty-sixth (Yankee) Division. He also won France's Croix de Guerre with palm, and was cited for bravery by Gen. John J. Pershing and Marshal Henri Petain.

Has Two Objectives

As chairman of the Republican National Committee, Reece will be the chief strategist of the GOP. His objectives will be (1) to capture at least the House of Representatives in '46, and (2) the White House in '48. In order to devote his full time to the job, he is giving up the House seat which he has held for 23 years.

To understand how Tennessee could produce a Democratic stalwart like Cordell Hull and a 200 per cent Republican like Carroll Reece, it is necessary to go back to the Civil War. In that struggle the State was divided in its sympathies.

Reece was born 56 years ago on a farm in the Great Smoky Mountains of east Tennessee, an area that was strongly pro-Union in 1861-65. Today it is overwhelmingly Republican, so much so that the Dewey-Bricker ticket got 80 per cent of its vote in 1944. Hoover campaigned in that area in 1928 when he broke the Solid South in his race against Al Smith.

One of 13 Children

Reece, 1 of 13 children, attended Carson-Newman College in Tennessee, New York University and the University of London. He was an instructor at New York University when war came in 1917. He enlisted the following month, went overseas in October and served 210 days at the front.

Action Might Cause Britain to Drop U. N. Demands, Is Claim

London, April 1 (U.P.).—Complete Russian evacuation of Iran might lead Britain to drop her demand in the United Nations Security Council for a full Russian explanation of why troops remained after the March 2 deadline, diplomatic circles believed tonight.

These circles said Britain was anxious to avoid further friction that might endanger the future of U. N.

Indications that Russia intends to carry out the evacuation were contained in Tehran dispatches today saying that Soviet troops were making "ostentatious preparations" for departure from Tabriz.

Kurdish Uprising Denied

London, April 1 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow said early today that reports of a Kurdish uprising in Iran and Iraq are "untrue."

Iranian army officers had reported tribesmen captured three Iranian garrison towns near the Azerbaijan border and were assaulting the Kudistan Provincial capital of Sinneh.

"The 'revolt' has been invented so as to give birth to a fairy tale about 'Russian interference,'" Moscow said.

qualified to represent Iran in the matter concerning Iran now before the Security Council and in any other matters concerning Iran which may come before the Security Council requiring Iranian representation. This accreditation will remain valid until further notice."

Speculation continued to center around Russia's moves. Delegates reserved comment as they prepared for resumption of sessions Wednesday at 11 a. m.

Reports to Truman

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes conferred with President Truman for an hour in the Capitol today, presenting a full report on the United Nations meetings. He was due back here tomorrow afternoon.

In London authoritative sources said the British government was convinced Russia would seek to make the United Nations work and had no intention of quitting the world organization. Russia's intention of remaining a working partner also was being reaffirmed in many quarters in Moscow.

Meanwhile, the Nassau Daily Review-Star of Rockville Centre, Long Island, said the U. N. would move from Hunter College in the Bronx to the Sperry Gyroscope plant at Lake Success in Long Island's Nassau County. The U. N. agreement with the city for use of Hunter expires May 15.

At Odds With Officials

The paper said city officials were at odds with U. N. representatives over the entire setup and wanted to return the Hunter buildings to the college, which has protested their continued use by the world organization.

The U. N. information office said: "Pending expiration of the Hunter College lease, the secretary-general is exploring all available possibilities. Thus far no decision has been reached regarding staying or leaving Hunter College."

United Nations officials have said that it would require three or five years to prepare a permanent home and there have been reports that Lake Success also might become the permanent location.

such a wheat purchase program. The idea originated at the Department of Agriculture, however, several days ago. Officials who have been at work on it for more than two weeks have hesitated to discuss it because news about the program before it goes into effect will serve to slow wheat sales even more.

LaGuardia, after a conference yesterday with Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, said his worry was food and not any particular mechanism for getting it. This was in reply to queries on whether he advocated a return to rationing in this country.

Food officials believe recent talk about rationing is hurting their procurement program—rather than helping it. They feel that it is resulting in hoarding, particularly of canned goods, and that persons advocating rationing are thinking in old rather than new terms.

Wheat and other cereals, for instance, are what is needed for the relief program—and nobody is thinking in terms of rationing bread by the coupon method. Meat for relief is obtained through the set-aside method, with the Government taking possession of what it needs in packing plants. After food gets into channels there is slight chance of the Government "recapturing" it.

Dried beans for the second quarter, for instance, cannot be obtain in appreciable quantities because most of the 1945 crop already is distributed. "Procurement to meet past commitments to foreign claimants is proving difficult," Agriculture said yesterday.

Other food developments of the day included:

1. Announcement that a Canadian film called "Suffer Little Children" would be used as part of the Nation-wide campaign to promote voluntary eat-less programs.

2. A reduction in wheat inventories of millers and mixed food manufacturers from 45 to 30 days' requirements. This 15-day cut will ease the market during the next two weeks, while the Government wheat purchase program is getting into effect.

3. The setting up by President Truman of an inter-agency food committee to work closely with the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

Anderson Likely Head

It will be headed by Secretary Anderson or his nominee and have also representative members from State, Treasury, Commerce, Interior, Labor, the Federal Security Agency and the Bureau of the Budget.

4. The calling of a meeting, for the week of May 20, by FAO to discuss "urgent food problems" and coordinate efforts to meet world food needs next winter.

Sir John Boyd Orr, FAO's director general, said those invited to attend will include representatives of UNRRA, the Combined Food Board and "other international organizations concerned with food, together with responsible ministers especially from countries that have a major contribution to make."

partment report on international control of atomic energy.

McMahon said that the discussions were largely about the possibility of 'denaturing" fissionable material so that it could be allotted to individual nations for peacetime purposes without the danger of its beng used in atomic bombs.

The report proposes that the mining, primary manufacture of the materials, and their subsequent denaturing be conducted by an international agency, the Atomic Development Authority, set up under the United Nations.

Details Not Disclosed

Yesterday's discussions on the subject were in executive session and details were not disclosed. It was understood, however, that the committee took a generally favorable attitude toward the report.

McMahon told newsmen after the meeting that he saw nothing in the report which affected the legislation before the committee in respect to domestic control of atomic development.

He said that after the present bill was reported out, he hoped to reopen hearings on the international aspects of control.

Bill Passed by House

Meantime, the House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would reserve exclusively for the Federal Government all fissionable materials — including uranium—found on public lands.

The Secretary of the Interior would insert in every authorization for land a reservation which entitles United States agents to prospect for, mine and remove from the land raw products used in the preparation of atomic materials.

The bill would confirm a policy that has been put into effect by regulation of the Interior Department.

The finding of Saturday morning papers inside the house and evening and Sunday papers lying on the steps, led to the belief the shootings took place sometime Saturday before noon.

Stoutenburgh had developed "a "phobia" over atomic bomb secrets, which he believed were leaking out despite his repeated recommendations to the War and Navy Departments, Dr. James J. Greeves of 1705 Hogart st. nw., a brother-in-law, by marriage, told police.

Work on Bomb Denied

The War Department said that Stoutenburgh had nothing to with development of the atom bomb itself.

A former Justice Department attorney, Stoutenburgh entered the Army in July, 1945, as a captain and became assistant to the chief of the patent division, office of scientific research and development, which handled legal work in connection with development of the atom bomb.

Discharged from the Army February 13, Stoutenburgh resigned from the Justice Department and returned to the job he had held as an Army officer as a civilian employe.

Phone Calls Unanswered

Dr. Greeves, a friend, Byron Stanner of 2016 Perry pl. nw., and Albert N. Johnson of 1638 North Edison st., Arlington, Mrs. Stoutenburgh's brother, rushed to the Stoutenburgh home yesterday after Mrs. Greeves had been unable to obtain any telephone response to several calls.

Circling the house to the rear, they found Stoutenburgh's automobile in the garage and then called Sixth Precinct police.

With Pvts. G. E. Raymond and L. J. Meledick, Dr. Greeves, a dentist, Stanner and Johnson broke in a back window of the house.

They found Stoutenburgh sprawled on his back across the bed, his feet on the floor. He was dressed in pajama bottoms and a smoking jacket. His wife wore a black housecoat, and his daughter wore a striped pair of pajama bottoms.

No Word Since Friday Night

Dr. Greeves said that they had heard no word from the house since his daughter, Jean, called up Mary Alice Friday night to make a roller skating date for Saturday morning. They had first become alarmed when Mary Alice didn't appear.

Neighbors said they heard no shots from the comfortable, old brick home where the Stoutenburgh's had lived for the past 12 years.

A neighbor recalled seeing Stoutenburgh Friday afternoon. Justice Department employes said he had visited them Thursday afternoon and told them he would soon be back to his old job in the claims division.

The Stoutenburghs were married in 1926, and neighbors here said they had been "extremely friendly."

Cathedral School Student

Their daughter, Mary Alice, was described as a "very bright and attractive child." She had been a student at the Cathedral School for more than three years and last attended her classes Friday.

Doctors said that it was "unusual" that the child lived for such a period unattended. They explained that the bullet wound was of such a nature that there was no compression of the blood which would have depressed her brain and killed her instantly.

Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide squad, said relatives told him that Stoutenburgh had unsuccessfully attempted to end his life with gas a month ago.

Was Caring for Husband

Mrs. Stoutenburgh, pretty, chestnut-haired employe at the American Security & Trust Co., had left her duties recently to take care of her husband, who, relatives said, had been in poor health lately.

Coroner Christopher J. Murphy withheld action pending further investigation and said that no notes were found in the house.

Stoutenburgh, born in Norwalk, Ohio, September 25, 1901, received his bachelor of arts degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1923 and won his law degree from George Washington University here in 1928.

One of Mrs. Stoutenburgh's brothers, Col. Edwin H. Johnson, recently returned from the Pacific after more than three years in Japanese prison camps and is now stationed in Philadelphia.

A second brother, Lieut. Col. William H. Johnson, retired, is with the Red Cross in Italy. Her third brother, Albert, who visited the house yesterday when the tragedy was discovered, was a first lieutenant with the Twenty-ninth Division during the recent war.

Mrs. Stoutenburgh's mother, Mrs. Albert L. Johnson, lives with Dr. and Mrs. Greeves, the latter a sister of the dead woman.

COAL

mands Lewis has spent hours describing the mine tragedies and suffering of those killed or maimed in underground mishaps.

The Labor Department's sketch of Fuller said he was a native of Indiana, Pa., and began work in the coal mines at the age of 12. It said:

Minister at One Time

"He worked in the mines until, at 18, his right foot was crushed in a mine accident. He then turned to the Methodist ministry and for three years was a "circuit rider' caring for three Methodist congregations made up almost entirely of miners and their families in the Pennsylvania mining towns of Sagamore, Madeira and Osceola Mills.

"He then worked in the steel mills, rising to the position of assistant general superintendent of Morris and Bailey Steel Co. at Wilson, Pa., which was absarbed by the United States Steel Corp.

"He next spent three years as an international representative of the American Federation of Labor on the staff of the late Samuel Gompers. During the first World War, he was superintendent of Transportation and Labor for the Mesta Machine Co. at West Homestead, Pa., He subsequently served as international representative of the United Mine Workers and the Textile Workers Union.

"Mr. Fuller then worked in the glass industry in the casting halls and polishing rooms and became active in the flat glass workers, then being organized. He was international president of the Flat Glass Workers Union, now known as the Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Sand Workers (CIO), from 1935 to 1939."

Lewis was head of the CIO while Fuller was president of the CIO union.

Lewis, Mitchell Honored

Pittsburgh, April 1 (AP).—The Nation's 400,000 bituminous coal miners today launched their first all-out strike since the war with a program of parades and speeches celebrating "Lewis-Mitchell Day."

The coal-diggers hold the traditional holiday annually in tribute to two United Mineworkers' presidents—John L. Lewis and the late John Mitchell. Union leaders and public officials addressed the gatherings, which were more numerous in the leading coal States of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Outside of that the strike began quietly in coal fields across the Nation.

Tomorrow, however, the coal shutdown takes on a more serious hue with start of curtailment in steel production, which was just getting back on its feet after the crippling strike of 750,000 CIO United Steelworkers in January.

of power and bankers' schemes for profit. The aim was to safeguard the public from too-high rates and the juggling of stock. The clause limited utility holding companies each to one main system in a single part of the country. In some cases the SEC might allow them to run other small units linked to the main system.

Under this clause the SEC told North American to get rid of its holdings in 56 of its 80 companies and confine itself to its utility setup in the St. Louis area.

North American's appeal reached the Supreme Court three years ago, but dragged on for lack of a quorum. Finally it was heard by Chief Justice Stone and Justices Murphy, Rutledge, Frankfurter, Black and Burton.

No Part in Case

Former SEC Chairman Douglas, former Attorney General Jackson and former Solicitor General Reed, took no part in the case.

For the court, Justice Murphy said North American clearly was engaged in interstate commerce, and thus could be regulated by Congress.

"The power to regulate; that is to prescribe the rule by which commerce is to be governed," Murphy quoted, "is complete in itself, may be exercised to its utmost extent, and acknowledges no limitations, other than are prescribed in the constitution."

"This broad commerce clause," Murphy also said, "does not operate as to render the Nation powerless to defend itself against economic forces that Congress decrees inimical or destructive of the national economy."

Pinnacle of Pyramid

Murphy called North American the pinnacle of a great pyramid of corporations in the gas and electric business, serving three million people in an area of 165,000 square miles. The power to dominate the financing of this far-flung empire, Murphy commented, "has been of great value and benefit to North American."

Even though North American—as it claimed—is guilty of none of the evils Congress found in the holding company method, Murphy said it still must be broken up. "Nothing in the Constitution," he said, "prevents Congress from acting in time to prevent potential injury to the national economy from becoming a reality."

Murphy said the act did not mean North American—or any other great holding system—must dump its stocks on the market. Any plan must be fair and equitable and may involve no more than turning the securities over to the stockholders of the holding company.

Validity of Clause Upheld

"But," he qualified, "should securities be sold for cash, speculation as to unfavorable market conditions cannot undermine the validity of the death sentence clause.

Mexican President Opens Labor Session

at the Kahului Naval Air Station. Beach residents of wealthy islanders were badly damaged, and Maui police estimated property losses at "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

In Alaska, the district Coast officer at Ketchikan reported that a tidal wave, preceded by an earthquake, had distroyed the Scotch Cap lighthouse station with all its personnel. The lighthouse stood at the entrance of Unimak Pass, guarding the entrance to the Bering Sea from the North Pacific. A nearby station, which reported the disaster, was badly damaged but escaped casualties.

Fort Randall Blow Reported

The Army Signal Corps in Seattle said its Adak station had a report of a tidal wave at Fort Randall, near Unimak, but had no details.

Up to 12:15 p. m., Pacific time, there was no sign of a tidal wave at the naval base on Adak Island, nor had an earthquake been felt at the remote Aleutian station. Adak reported, however, that it was unable to contact the Signal Corps station at Fort Glenn on Unmak Island, 400 miles east of Adak and about 50 miles west of Dutch Harbor.

The Navy warning, based on the tidal wave at Unimak, did not mention casualties or damage at Unimak station. It said the center of the tidal wave was undetermined but "believed to be at latitude 55 north, longitude 164 west."

Escapes Its Full Force

California appeared to have escaped the full force of the tidal disturbance.

The giant waves which crashed on central California beaches, however, terrified beholders and carried at least one man to his death. The elderly victim was one of two men strolling on a beach at Santa Cruz, south of San Francisco, when a great wave rushed upon them. The survivor said he seized his companion and helped him to his feet and then lost hold of him as the outgoing wave tumbled them in the surf.

Huge waves also were reported at Half Moon Bay, south of San Francisco, and at Bolinas and Point Arena, north of San Francisco. Some points reported property damage.

There was no unusual activity on the San Francisco beach front, but a 6-ft. wave hit Santa Barbara beach in southern California.

3 Ships Break Dock Lines

San Pedro, just below Los Angeles, reported one tanker and two cargo ships broke dock lines and were pushed back into the docks by tugs.

A 10-foot wave hit the Oregon coast at Charleston, at the entrance to Coos Bay. No damage was reported.

At Seattle, Howard Coombs, associate professor of geology at the University of Washington, said he believed the tidal disturbance originated in a submarine earthquake of major intensity in the Aleutian area. He estimated the wave was traveling at a speed of 400 to 500 miles an hour. He said he registered the earthquake on his seismograph at 4:38 a. m., PST. (7:38 a. m., EST).

Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, University of Hawaii volcanologist, said the tidal wave had been caused by a "world-shaking submarine earthquake." He ruled out the possibility of an undersea valcanic eruption.

Jaggar said the first wave hit Oahu at 7 a. m. (12:30 p. m. EST), the second at 7:07 and the third at 7:14, and added: "That is the usual pattern for disturbances of this kind."

Gandhi Ignores Rocks Hurled at Him in New Delhi

New Delhi, April 1 (AP).—Anti-Congress Party demonstrators hurled rocks and shouted "down with Gandhi!" today a few minutes after Mohandas Gandhi arrived in New Delhi for conferences with the British cabinet mission on Indian independence.

Rocks landed within 50 feet of the spiritual leader, but he seated himself on a floor bed and took no notice, remaining mute in accordance with his routine of silence on Mondays.

labor costs had increased 128 per cent; feed costs were up 105 per cent and all other costs up 50 per cent over 1941 levels.

The increase would amount to a 17 per cent rise over current rate of returns.

The association introduced the following resolution at the outset of the hearing:

"If the Federal Government does not approve promptly a substantial increase in the price to producers delivering milk to this market, the management of this association is hereby instructed to withhold all milk from the market until an adequate price increase is forthcoming."

Bruce B. Derrick, manager of the association, was asked to define "romptly" and whether the association had set any time limit for Government action, he said:

"By 'promptly,' we mean the amount of time the department would normally take to study the request."

Agriculture Department officials said that studies normally "take about two months," but they indicated that the case of the Washington farmers would probably be accelerated.

However, regardless of what price increase Agriculture recommends, it will not be reflected in consumers prices until the Office of Economic Stabilization reviews the findings, officials said.

Yesterday's meeting between local milk distributors and members of Local 246 of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters was the first since negotiations brokn down March 21.

Principal issue in the dispute is wages. The union demanded a $7 weekly pay boost for retail and wholesale drivers and increases in commissions on sales.

Herman Schulteis, vice president of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, one of the six dairies involved, said that to grant the wage demands would cost the company and the industry two and one-half million dollars annually.

This cost, he said, would be reflected in a price rise for milk ranging between 5 and 7 cents a quart.

However, such favorable progress was made in resuming negotiations that the U. S. Conciliation Service will not sit in on tomorrow's sessions, McCuthcheon said.

"We will watch the case, but will not reenter it unless another breakdown happens," he added.

Lenin On Free Consent

THE RECENT APPEAL to outlaw negotiations under duress made by Ernest Bevin, the British Foreign Secretary, is based on the old and universally recognized axiom of jurisprudence. The rule that any expression of will extorted by serious threats or force should be considered as null and void had been one of the main foundations of the Roman civil law. This rule was stated in a brief, laconic formula, "Coactus voluit," which meant that the party involved gave its consent to some deal or settlement not as a free agent but under illegal compulsion.

In its recent statement that free negotiations between the Soviet and Iranian governments cannot take place "when the troops of one are present on the territory of the other against its will," the Security Council acted in full conformity with this principle of Roman civil law. There is no doubt that the same principle should be applied also in the realm of international law and international relations.

NOBODY EXPRESSED this truth with greater clarity and eloquence than Lenin and his closest associates in their ukase issued on November 8, 1917, on the day following the establishment of the Soviet government in Russia. The text of the ukase is reproduced in Lenin's Collected Works, Volume XXII, on page 13. The following quotation speaks for itself:

"If a small or weak nation is not accorded the right to decide the form of its political existence by a free vote—implying the complete withdrawal of the troops of the incorporating or merely strong nation—then the incorporation is an annexation, i. e., an arbitrary appropriation of a foreign country, an act of violence."

These words of Lenin's ukase must equally apply to the right of any nation—strong or weak—to decide also such questions as grants of concessions or any other similar issues without any pressure on the part of any foreign country. Any statements, agreements and decisions made under the compulsion of foreign armies must be regarded as illegal and as not binding for all the other countries. A government using threats or force in such cases would undoubtedly display by such behavior its full disregard to the very foundations of the Charter of the U. N.

IT IS FORTUNATE and encouraging that the Iranian Premier Ahmed Qavam confirmed all the statements of Ambassador Ala, and expressed his approval in regard to Ala's presentation of the Iranian grievances at the Security Council. Anyhow, this is a good proof that up to the present Ahmed Qavam has not become entirely deprived of his right to express disagreement with the Soviet views in all the controversies involved. On the other hand, any eventual future disapproval of Ala's statements would be a bad sign, and would create an impression that the Iranian Premier has become a de facto prisoner of the Soviet troops in Iran.

In the course of the coming few days we will probably learn more about the plans and intentions of the rulers of the USSR in regard to Iran. The Soviet government still has a possibility to reconsider this whole issue, and to show by further acts to the world that present-day Russia intends to restore and to preserve the rule contained in Lenin's ukase of November 8, 1917.

Housing Movement

By Merlo Pusey

Mr. Wyatt Puts Steam Behind It

AMID THE CONFUSION and disillusionment of the postwar period, the steam which Wilson Wyatt is putting behind the housing program is a refreshing sign. His assault on the housing problem has assumed the characteristics of a David and Goliath affair. And while the David in this story is a long way from triumphant victory over the giant, his courage and activity have brought new hope to a great number of wretchedly housed Americans.

PUSEY

Mr. Wyatt's immediate objective is to provide new housing for veterans at prices or rentals they can afford to pay. The task of producing 2,700,000 new dwelling units in the next two years is critically urgent because of the acute shortage of housing resulting from the war. But this is only the spearhead of the housing movement. Behind it is the larger task of building 12 to 15 million dwelling units in the next decade for families who have never had a decent place to live.

Possibly the most significant factor in the present outlook is that energy, initiative and imagination have been brought to bear upon the whole housing problem. Mr. Wyatt is more than a sound thinker about housing; he is also a driving force toward action. If he succeds in intermeshing all of the complex factors that are essential to the creation of a stable mass-production housing industry, it will be one of the great accomplishments of our time.

THE UNPALATABLE fact is that a vast number of people in our cities have always been shamefully housed. Living quarters have been produced, with precious little comprehensive planning and largely for families in the upper income brackets. As they have become old and obsolete, they have been passed down to families farther down the economic scale. Only in recent years has there been any concerted effort to build new and appropriate housing for families in the middle and lower income brackets. And this has been provided in relatively small quantities.

We had a building boom in the 1920's. But it was followed by a bust because so little effort was made to provide modern housing for the groups who needed it most. In the 1930's the revival was so halting that we fell critically short of providing enough housing to supply the new families added to our population.

At present, therefore, the United States presents the spectacle of the most wealthy nation in the world steadily slipping backward in this vital matter of housing. Our great motor industry has put the Nation on wheels, and other industries have filled our homes and offices with gadgets. But the business of providing comfortable, healthful and attractive living quarters in a pleasant environment is still in the horse-and-buggy stage.

Considerable progress has been made in providing public housing for those whose incomes give them no chance of obtaining a decent home through private enterprise. Much less has been done to date to improve the quality and increase the quantity of housing available to families in the middle income brackets. The time seems to be ripe for concentration of our best city planning, engineering and financing genius on the rescue of both these categories of city dwellers from the depressing drabness or downright squalor of their home environment.

THE FACT THAT this task involves a very large measure of rebuilding for most of our cities should only quicken the general eagerness for undertaking it. Most of our cities are afflicted with the ugliness, the blight and incongruity that result from poor planning. Today they are frantically pushing into new suburban areas to get away from the decay attacking them at or near the core. But that trend leaves enormous pockets of rotten housing, crime, delinquency and disease to spread their demoralizing influence through the entire community.

What are obviously needed are major operations to eliminate living conditions that bring out the worst characteristics of human kind. These will require new vision in our legislative halls as well as in administrative agencies and among the peoples themselves. It is a matter of good fortune that such vision has already been manifested in the drafting of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill and in the shaping of Mr. Wyatt's program as housing expediter.

This great objective should not be lost while every effort is being turned to the creation of housing for veterans. The great hope that Mr. Wyatt and the sponsors of housing legislation in Congress have aroused is that the momentum we must achieve in meeting the present emergency can be projected into the rebuilding of our cities during the next several decades.

Some Notes On U. N.

By Barnet Nover

One Week Of The Council

RUSSIA PAYS UP. It is surprising that Russia's action in paying her dues to the United Nations promptly and in full should have caused any surprise.

NOVER

To be sure, the prelude to this action was the dramatic withdrawal of Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet delegate, from the Security Council following its action in voting down his request for an adjournment of the Iranian issue until April 10.

This move stirred up a great wave of alarm regarding Russia's attitude toward the United Nations. From the outset Russia has exhibited far less enthusiasm for the new world organization than has either the United States or Great Britain. Thus far, certainly, the Russians have never manifested any inclination to regard it as anything more than an agency for the settlement of secondary issues that the Big Three lacked the time or the inclination to settle by themselves.

The fact remains that the United Nations exists, that it includes within its membership the overwhelming majority of the nations of the world and that it has become, even in the short time since San Francisco, the sheet anchor of American and British foreign policy.

Russia cannot afford to ignore the United Nations. It can afford even less to withdraw from it and in that way exercise no control over its evolution. If the United Nations cannot be used to further Russia's national or imperial aims, and the current meeting of the Security Council demonstrates that the U. N. may be somewhat of an obstacle in Russia's path, Russia, as a member of the U. N. can at least exercise some control over the use of United Nation's machinery.

This was demonstrated at the Security Council's meeting at Hunter College. Gromkyo failed to hold up the Council's at least partial consideration of the Iranian case. But his maneuvers did succeed, in one way or another, in giving Russia at least a week of the two weeks she had sought in which to bring Premier Qavam to book and present the United Nations with a fait accompli dressed up as a reasonable settlement.

The real question concerning Russia's membership in the United Nations is not whether she will remain a member but whether she will try to use her membership to prevent the development of the world organization into a kind of body it ought to become.

THE BIG AND THE SMALL. The meeting of the Security Council in New York has again demonstrated the fact, so clearly evident in the days when the old League of Nations was still alive, that while power is concentrated ability knows no national frontiers.

Between them the Big Five who hold permanent seats on the Security Council possess between two thirds and three quarters of economic and military power in the world. But they possess no monopoly on brains and idealism.

Of the great power representatives on the Council the central figure was without question our own Secretary Byrnes. But the meetings—until the departure of the Russians—was far more than a duel between him and Delegate Gromyko.

Some very telling points were made in the course of the discussion by Egypt's Hassan, by Van Kleffens of the Netherlands and by Mexico's Najera.

They not only proved themselves able representatives of their own countries but effective spokesmen of the little nations as well, the little nations that were not present at the curved table in Hunter College's erstwhile gymnasium but were nonetheless following the deliberations with tremendous concern.

NEW YORK AND San Francisco. To anyone who, like myself, attended the conference at San Francisco where the United Nations Charter was drawn up the contrast between the attitude of both cities is striking and altogether in San Francisco's favor.

New York can go wild over a Channel swimmer, a transatlantic flier, or a movie star. But if New York is in the least excited over having been chosen as the temporary capital of the world there is no visible evidence of it. It flies no flags. Its windows contain no cards of welcome.

When Trygve Lie, the secretary general of the United Nations arrived in New York, William F. O'Dwyer, the mayor, was too busy to meet him at the airport and he was even too busy to attend the luncheon he gave for Mr. Lie. The excuse was that Mayor O'Dwyer was suddenly called to Washington on important business. How important that business was can be seen in the fact that the mayor went to Washington by automobile!

The architects, contractors and workers who transformed Hunter College into the seat of the Security Council did a remarkable job. But in the course of the construction no fewer than 15 jurisdictional strikes occurred.

More frequently than not, the attitude displayed by New York toward the U. N. was that it represented not a group of welcome visitors to whom the city and the people ought to extend every possible courtesy—that was the attitude of San Franciscans from the highest to the lowliest—but unwelcome interlopers.

The mystery is why New York was ever chosen at all, even for a temporary site. It was the worst possible choice.

Rep. Douglas Urges Return To Food Rationing in U. S.

Representative Emily Taft Douglas (D., Ill.) yesterday called for a return to Nation-wide food rationing in order to preserve a just share of goods for every one.

In a resolution introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday, Mrs. Douglas asked for a declaration that "It is the sense of the oCngress that in view of the present world-wide shortage of essential foods and the starvation which now faces tens of millions of people in many countries, the President of the United States should take the necessary steps to institute a system of Nation-wide food rationing for those commodities of which there is a marked world deficit."

Restraint Held Inadequate

The Illinois Gengresswoman-at-large declared that voluntary measures of self-restraint, plus recent imposed limitations on the use of grain for livestock and poultry feed, are inadequate to cope with the "desperate situation."

Such measures, she said, are aimed "merely to tide us over an immediate crisis which it is said will end with the coming harvest." However, she went on, Herbert Lehman, former UNRRA head, has assured us that the emergency cannot be settled in a few months. "Dislocations of war remain so vast that we dare noe expect much improvement by 1947. With the lives of millions at stake, we have no right to gamble on hope."

Mrs. Douglas asserted that even if it took weeks to resume rationing, the "delay, inconvenience and administrative expenses are trifling beside the specter of mass famine." She said, however, that in her opinion rationing could be resumed tomorrow, through the use of blank coupons in Book Four, now used for sugar.

A return to Nation-wide rationing is indicated, Mrs. Douglas said, because she believes the average American wants to do his share. "But none of us knows what our share is," she said.

Working Women Handicapped

Voluntary efforts at food conservation, she said, are "at best only good for short time spurts, for people tend to relax into less spartan habits."

Mrs. Douglas also declared that when there are shortages, women with time on their hands get all the breaks, while professional women must "queue up and often go without."

The Illinois Congresswomam told members of the House that her rationing scheme had a purely selfish motive.

"Our children's contemporaries, who must decide policies in Europe and in the Far East," she said, "are growing up with warped bodies and warped minds. Only if we fed them and give them a chance to develop as normal and healthy human beings can our children have the hope of a decent and stable world."

Russell Mitchell Post to Install Officers Tonight

Newly elected officers of Russell Mitchell Post, No. 609, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its affiliated units will be installed at a joint meeting of the veterans' groups tonight at 8 o'clock in the Alexandria Armory.

Heading the list of officers to be installed will be the Rev. Norman Roberts, commander of Russell Mitchell Post; Mrs. Inez McClary, president of the post's auxiliary, the Bernard H. Cook, seam squirrel of the Military Order of the Cootie.

Among guests who have been invited to the installation are national officers of the V. F. W., Virginia Congressional leaders and local and State officials.

The meeting will be followed by a dance.

Two Ex-Officers Urge Release Of Mihailovic

Detroit, March 31. (INS).—A former Army lieutenant colonel and an ex-lieutenant are joining forces again today to organize mass protests against the coming trial of Yugoslavia's General Draja Mihailovic as a war criminal.

The lieutenant colonel, John W. Richardson, was in charge of the project to evacuate downed Allied airmen. The former lieutenant, Hal Souter, a bombardier, was shot down and was hidden for 66 days by Mihailovic's Chetniks.

Souter was one of the 231 airmen rescued in a great mass evacuation from behind enemy lines, organized by Richardson.

Richardson said: "Those 231 men and their families know Mihailovic and his forces saved them from capture and death and fought back the enemy from that air strip where we landed our planes and snatched them back to safety."

House Bill Would Honor Dead of World War II

The House yesterday unanimously passed a bill authorizing the burial in Arlington National Cemetery of an unknown American hero of World War II.

The legislation directed that the "remains of an American who lost his life while serving overseas in the armed forces of the United States" shall be buried in the memorial amphitheater beside or near the tomb of the unknown soldier of World War I.

The bill, introduced by Representative Price (D., Ill.) was sent to the Senate.

Washington-Egypt Flight Service Is Inaugurated

Trans-World Airline last night inaugurated flight service from Washington to Switzerland, Italy, Greece and Egypt.

Their giant new plane, the Sphinx, took off from National Airport at 11 p. m. following a christening of the ship by the wives of four diplomats.

Brig. Gen. Julian Holmes, vice president of TWA, and Thomas Beck, president of Collier's magazine, spoke at the dedication of the plane.

The ship was christened with a cloud gun instead of the customary champagne. The gun emits puffs of white, cloud-like smoke.

The wives of the following diplomats christened the ship: Senor Alberto Tarchiani, Italian Ambassador; Charles Bruggmann, Minister of Switzerland; Cimon Diamantopoulos, Greek Ambassador, and Col. Mohamad Bey Abdel Halina Khalifa, Air Attache of the Egyptian Legation.

APRIL 6th
Know your Regular Army in Peace

VICTORY has stilled the guns of war and stopped the terrible carnage of combat. But it has not ended the task to which this nation has dedicated itself since December 7, 1941.

On the armies which conquered the aggressors now falls the solemn obligation of securing their hard-won triumph . . . of bringing order out of the chaos of war-torn countries . . . of carrying out the commitments entered into by our Government.

More than half a million young men from every corner of the United States already have joined the new peacetime Regular Army to see this job through, and to take advantage of the splendid new enlistment privileges which make the peacetime Regular Army one of the most attractive careers open to them today.

On April 6, Army Day, you will have an opportunity to meet your new Army face to face at public exhibits and demonstrations throughout the United States. By visiting these displays, you will, perhaps for the first time, appreciate the full scope of the Army's activities, and the enormous contributions they make to every-day civilian life.

The Army's research and exploration in radar, electronics, aviation, communications, chemistry, medicine, sanitation, disease control, mechanics, engineering and countless other fields are all important to you. For eventually you benefit from their inventions, developments and improvements.

This is your Army . . . an Army of which you can well be proud. Make a point of making its acquaintance on Army Day — April 6!

Paris Musical Belies Cyclonic Billing But Is Still Gusty Fun

IN TITLING his quasi-factual screen story of the origin of his orchestra "Tourbillon de Paris" ("Whirlwind of Paris"), Ray Ventura was several miles-per-hour too optimistic. Breezily amusing and tuneful, yes, but scarcely of a velocity to blow the customer out of his chair.

Sigmund Romberg

Notwithstanding the producer-star's pardonable overestimate, the picture opening today at the Hippodrome Theater runs up a distinctly favorable score.

As the first musical to come out of France since the war, it is understandably deficient in "production values" but still manages to create an agreeable illusion. Frequently bordering on the farcical in its spirited development, it suffers from the brevity of the English subtitles, seldom as humorous as the action they purport to interpret.

Even so, the satire on higher education and the comedy devices employed to express the entanglement of several youthful love affairs and the financial distress of virtually all the principals at one time or another, are in themselves hilarious.

The student body, more immersed in romance and music than in intellectual attainment, is engagingly deflected from the final exams by economic stresses that reach the breaking point when the head of the school finds his system for beating the roulette wheels something less than perfect. With capital for 22 more plays, he would have won something like two and a quarter million francs!

Already a performance of opera has been broken up, the Hotel Francois Villon has been mulcted out of all its ready cash, several of the boys have been in jail and their amatory exercises so hopelessly scrambled that there seems no way out.

The manner in which the way out and up is maneuvered through a famous Parision theatrical agent and a debut at Le Bourget, deftly stolen from another orchestra, is farcically preposterous and proportionately laughable.

Easy on the Ears

Since the film is largely musical and the music is uniformly melodious, well played and cleverly sung, no American audience need fret too much about the volume of dialogue it inevitably mus mitss. "Whirlwind of Paris is quite a lark as it stands.

While there will be no difficulty in identifying the personable Ventura and Charpin and Marguerite Pierry, who impersonate the distraught heads of the prep school, the others in the cast are less easy to pin down. It is presumable that Coco Aslan and Jean Tissier are the two who supply most of the action's enlivening nonsense and Mona Goya, Claire Jordan and Milla Pitoeff the chief supporting femmes. Whitch one is which, I wouldn't know.

Not an item patterned to American standards, there is still a deal of enjoyable fun here.

At the opposite end of the emotional scale is "Ravaged Earth," which will upset precedent by playing a four-day, premiere Washington engagement in Constitution Hall Thursday through Sunday, April 11-14. "Ravaged Earth" is a revelation of "Hirohito's crimes in China" not originally made for public consumption. It was filmed by Mark L Moody, an automobile dealer in Shangai and for 23 years a resident of the Orient. Mr. Moody photographed everything he saw, and in assembling his film into feature length permitted none of his photographic punches to be pulled. The film is said to be as starkly savage as anything ever shown at another time. In the meantime, it is well to know that performances will be continuous daily from 7 p. m., and on Sunday from 2 p. m., at a flat admission price of 75 cents, plus tax. Tickets will be on sale, beginning Thursday, April 4, at Snow's Concert Bureau, 1108 G st., as well as at the Constitution Hall box-office. Not a subject for squeamish eyes, "Ravaged Earth" was hailed by the late William Allen White as "A 'MUST' for intelligent people."

Now that we are in it, April might as well be called "Sigmund Romberg month" in Washington. With two weeks of "Blossom Time" on the roll at the National, the composer himself will be coming along to Constitution Hall on Monday night, April 22, with his 50-piece orchestra, solo artists and program of "middlebrow" music. Mr. Romberg, of late, has been running neck and neck with his famous operetta by playing to sold-out houses.

By Way of Innovation

Breaking with tradition, the Civic Dance Concert, sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department, on Friday night in Roosevelt Auditorium will offer premieres of two new experimental ballets.

Marion D. Venable, well known Washington choreographer and ballet director, found inspiration for "The White Flower" in Matilda C. Edward's poem, "The Church Walking With the World." Before a setting of black curtain and white cross, Miss Venable's Ballet Soiree portrays the White Flower of Faith and the Goddess World in a drama of spiritual strife.

Erika Thimey, who acquired her choreography with Wigman and Holm, is breaking with precedent to present for the first time a surrealist dance, "Distich." Miss Thimey, as the title implies, will portray two states of consciousness, dancing before a Dali-like setting with a beam of light as her partner. Douglas Luther, Washington composer, wrote the original music for this terpsichorean novelty. Lieut. W. N. Thompson devised the setting and lighting. Tickets at the Snow Concert Bureau.

Tonight is the night $250,000 worth of "Skating Vanities" get rolling noiselessly at Uline Arena. Yes, noiselessly—Masonite skating surface and ball-bearing skates—so there!

Gossip From Gotham

New York, April 1.—Last week's testimony from Nuernberg reported the propaganda payments made, among others, by Herr Sholtz, who was the Nazi consul in Boston. . . . Sholtz often spent weekends in Manhattan's swankiest hotel. One morning, after he checked out, the hotel maid started to clean the room. She found a magazine on a chair, shook the pages, and 10 $1000 bills dropped to the floor. She notified the manager, who called William P. Maloney, then the prosecutor in charge of the grand jury investigation of Nazi propaganda. A call was put in for Sholtz in Boston, and he was told of the $10,000. He denied that it belong to him, and said he knew nothing about it. Because there was no other claimant, the $10,000 was given to the maid.

Compromise Reported Near On Wage Bill

By the United Press

Administration forces were reported near a compromise last night with one Senate faction opposing the 65-cent minimum wage bill.

A Senate source said "considerable progress" has been made toward getting together with the group, led by Senators Ellender (D., La.) and Ball (R., Minn.), which has offered a 55-cent substitute.

This official said two wage propositions were under consideration:

1. A flat boost of the present 40-cent minimum wage to 60 cents effective nine months after the measure is enacted.

2. A 55-60-65 scale in place of the Administration's 65-70-75. The Administration measure calls for an increase to 65 cents immediately, to 70 cents after two years and to 75 cents after four years.

60-Cent Plan Favored

Senate leaders were represented as inclined to the flat 60-cent proposal.

Senate consideration of the wage legislation was put aside for the day as lengthy debate developed on the nomination of Commodore James K. Vardaman, jr., to a place on the Federal Reserve Board.

Backrs of the Administration bill held a conference with Senathors Ellender, Ball and others.

One senator, who attended, said the two groups would have no difficulty in compromising on a wage figure, but that the "rub" was on the question of coverage. He asked not to be quoted by name.

The Administration measure would extend the minimum wage law to some 3,500,000 aditional workers, including seamen and certain processors of agricultural products, such as cotton gins, now exempt.

The Ellender-Ball substitute would leave the coverage unchanged.

Those seeking a compromise contemplate that the farm price boosting amendment sponsored by Senator Russell (D., Ga.) could be knocked out if a wage figure lower than the Administration's original scale were accepted.

President Truman has served notice that he will veto the legislation if it reaches him with the Russell amendment included.

Despite the President's warning, the Senate adopted the Russell proposal, 43 to 31, on last Friday.

Meanwhile, Stabilization Director Chester Bowles declared the cost of living would jump 6 per cent or more under the farm parity formula passed by the Senate.

Bowles said the amendment would shoot retail food prices up about 15 per cent and increase the average family's annual food budget around $125, besides forcing an increase of 7 per cent in store price of cotton garments. He called it sharply inflationary.

The estimates were contained in a letter to Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), dated March 14. Bowles released it today.

No Ceiling Set On Tobacco in Md. This Year

No price ceilings will be placed on Maryland tobacco this year.

Lifting of the current ceiling price by OPA was announced last night by Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.).

This may mean a half-million addad income to Maryland tobacco growers.

Sasscer said the action came after a conference March 22 between OPA representatives and a group of Maryland tobacco growers whom he accompanied.

The Maryland crop will come to the market in May, Sasscer said. The request to lift the ceiling prices was made to forestall a battle similar to that last year when a ceiling of 57 cents a pound was imposed.

The 1945 crop was valued at approximately 15 million dollars, the representative said.

At the meeting in March the committee pointed out that Maryland light leaf tobacco is used in practically all cigarettes because it adds to the burning qualities and flavor. It is about the only area in the United States where this type of tobacco is grown.

The committee also argued that they have higher labor costs than Southern tobacco growers.

Serving on the committee requesting the ceiling elimination were: E. A. Miller, Huntingtown, chairman; George Sachse, manager of the Maryland Tobacco Growers Association, Baltimore; Robert Hall, Upper Marlboro, representing the loose leaf sales houses; R. Bennett Darnall, Grennock, for independent farmers, and Walter Posey, Upper Marlboro of the University of Maryland.

Army Conservation Drive To Save 10,000 Tons of Bread

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Twenty-two million pounds of bread—enough to reach around the world will be saved by the Army this year in the food conservation program.

Figures gathered by Quartermaster Corps statisticians show that the Army's use of the new emergency flour, together with its reduction in bread rations, will save 18,967,594 pounds of cleaned grain wheat. This is the equivalent of more than 15 million pounds of 80 per cent extraction flour during the year.

Army Cuts Waste

The Army is getting behind the tighten-the-belt food campaign suggested by President Truman by cutting down on edible waste, also. "More food in the stomach and less in the garbage can" is the slogan now being used by the QMC.

At Fort Belvoir, Va., plans are being formulated to save food among the 72 messes.

As soon as equipment arrives, Belvoir will begin operation of a pastry baking school. Purpose of the school will be to conserve the use of flour in desserts by using open-faced pies, and to utilize flour to the fullest extent in other flour products. Personnel from ten of the post's messes will attend each cycle of the school.

Weekly Meetings Planned

Also planned is a weekly meeting of the mess sergeants, who will hold round-table discussions for the development of new ideas for food conservation.

QMC officials feel that making bread pudding from stale bread and heating left-over cereals is not the answer to the critical wheat shortage. QMC goes a step further by declaring "If the bread, flour and cereals authorized to be drawn are not needed, do not draw them." Conservation methods, to be effective, must be applied continuously from the time bread, flour and cereals are issued until they have been consumed by the soldiers, it was said.

Just as the American housewife is doing her best to cooperate in the President's food conservation program, the Army is advising its cooks to use left-over bread to make croutons to serve with soups; make French toast from left-over dry toast, and make dressings or stuffing as an extender or stretcher for meats.

Suggestions Offered

Here are other suggestions advanced by QMC to conserve flour: Make use of bread crumbs by toasting left-over bread and rolls in a slo woven until completely dry and brittle. Grind in a meat grinder and crush to a powder with a rolling pin. Store in air tight containers and use to bread meat and seafood. Use also as crumb toppings on scalloped meat and vegetables; add to a cramed sauce topping for vegetables; use to bread tomatoes and egg plants, as filler in croquettes, dressing and meat loaves.

The Army has developed further economies by deleting the allowance of five pounds of bread for toast at breakfast when hot cakes, French toast, bran muffins or coee cake are served. This makes a saving of 1,445,000 pounds of bread throughout the Army per month.

To save flour, consideration also is being given to serving eggs at least once more each week for breakfast, and to eliminating hot cakes at that meal. This will save 408,000 pounds of flour, 51,000 pounds of sugar and 68,000 gallons of syrup each month.

Whole wheat cereal has been suggested to replace approximately half of the flour in hot cake mix. This, the QMC declares, makes an excellent griddle cake with a marked saving in flour. Where there is a loss of calories due to the deletion of some flour, fat and sugar from the diet, the Army has suggested doubling the consumption of milk as a calory compensation.

AFL Not Planning To Test Legality Of Va. Draft Move

Virginia Gov. William M. Tuck's action in drafting Virginia Electric & Power Co. employes into the State militia to forestall a threatened State-wide power strike faces no immediate court challenge by the AFL, it was learned yesterday.

In response to reports from Richmond, Va., that the union was considering making a court test of the mergency draft, Associate Counsel Henry Kaiser of the AFL, said: "We have no plans for instituting legal action at any time in the immediate future."

Governor Tuck rescinded his draft order Saturday when VEPCO and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers agreed to arbitration. Company and union representatives will meet in Richmond April 9 to seek an agreement on remaining issues.

Hoover Finds Food Outlook Poor for Finns After June

Helsinki, April 1 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, head of an American commission investigating European food conditions, told reporters today that Finland's food rations can be maintained at their present level until the end of June, but that thereafter there will be a shortage of 40,000 to 50,000 tons of grain until the end of September when the new harvest is reaped.

Hoover said 800,000 Finns—400,000 evacuees from land ceded Russia, small wage earners and Finns living in the area ravaged by the Germans—are in "urgent need of additional food."

About 500,000 children over the age of 2, he added, are "seriously undernourished."

Hoover, who arrived here yesterday by plane from Warsaw, said conditions in Poland were the worst he had seen thus far in Europe and that a study by American experts showed "over 2,600,000 children are terribly subnormal from undernourishment."

"The food situation in Poland has become suddenly and heart-breakingly bad, due to miscalculations," Hoover declared. "Breadstuffs and potatoes in stock and en route from overseas theoretically will last only until May 7 on reduced rations. Bread rations are on a theoretical average of seven ounces per day per person, and two cities—Krakow and Lodz—already have been without bread for three weeks at a time."

Hoover said that Poland's already disorganized food situation had been complicated by the migration of millions of Poles westward from territory annexed by Russia and the expulsion of Germans westward from territory annexed by Poland.

"It is a forbidding picture," he added, "but with food until the next harvest Poland can rise from her ashes."

Meat Black Market Called Too Big for U. S. to Handle

By the Associated Press

Liquor violations during prohibition days "were just peanuts compared with what is going on now in meat," Iowa Congressmen were told yesterday by a packing company official.

They met with F. J. Grier of the John Morrell Packing Co. which operates plants in Ottumwa, Iowa; Sioux Falls, S. Dak., and Topeka, Kans.

Representative Lecompte, who called the meeting, said no specific proposals for revision of OPA meat ceilings were discussed.

Grier told the group the black market in meat "has become too large for the Government to handle," he asserted public opinion is not behind enforcement of OPA meat ceilings.

An attorney for small packers told the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday that "price control on meat has broken down and the black market is running wild."

Wilber La Roe, counsel for the National Independent Meat Packers Association, which he said had 700 members, recommended that price controls be removed from meat.

"There is no real price control on meat and livestock now," he declared.

If price checks were removed, La Roe said, there would probably be an "abnormal increase" in prices for a month or two, "just long enough to knock out the black market."

Asked by Senator Ellender (D., La.) how much "abnormal" increase" there would be, La Roe said he was not in a position to estimate.

La Roe said, however, that abolition of meat subsidies would necessitate an increase of 5 to 6 cents a pound in the price of beef and a somewhat smaller increase on pork. The subsidies amount to 700 million dollars a year.

Senator Connally (D., Tex.) interjected that he favored abolishing the subsidies.

"I don't see why the Government should pay for my steak," Connally commented.

Government Workers Get Red Cross Plea

The Red Cross Government Unit begins a final roundup of solicitation in the Federal and District offices today.

Richard H. Wilmer, chairman of the Greater Washington 1946 Red Cross campaign, said yesterday that "for an overwhelming success in this greater Washington area, a Government Unit victory is essential. I am confident that the Government will come through."

Government offices which have reached 100 per cent of quota include Federal Reserve System, Library of Congress, National Gallery of Art, Navy Department, U. S. Soldiers Home, White House office, Selective Service System, United States Court of Customs and Appeals.

Although $1,470,480 has been given by 249,290 persons, the campaign is still short $102,920 of its goal.

B'nai B'rith Votes $3000 As Gift to Red Cross

Officials of B'nai B'rith yesterday voted a contribution of $3000 to the current drive by American Red Cross.

The sum was voted by the National Postwar Service-Americanism Commission of the organization, which is now holding a three-day conference here.

Since its inception in 1942, the war service fund of B'nai B'rith accumulated $560,000 which went into recreational equipment, Red Cross, and religious activities in a serve-a-hospital drive.

A. B. Kapplin, director of the Americanism commission, reported on the work of the war service group. It was announced yesterday that a newly formed veterans advisory committee has begun its fight to provide a "job and a home for every veteran."

Lieut. Col. Elliott A. Niles, of Boston, was elected unanimously as chairman of the veterans advisory group.

Hunger Makes Hitlers

▸ The people of Europe are hungry.

▸ Extreme hunger is one thing a man cannot get away from. Every minute, day and night, it stays with him, dominates his talk, distorts his mind, haunts his dreams. Inevitably he begins to despise his way of life. Driven to extremes of thought and action, he will be ready to follow any leader promising "a new world order."

▸ Hunger makes Hitlers.

▸ We promised that with victory would come food. We have just renewed that pledge. This promise is a message of hope—hope for a better tomorrow. It is our strongest weapon to combat despair. By delivering this food we will, with peaceful means, deny tomorrow's dictators. We will preserve humanity for peace.

▸ As a witness to scenes of starvation in Europe, I can assure you that for many our help is already very late. As a manufacturer of food, I can tell you that the greatest reserve from which starvation can be halted is in the United States.

▸ What can each of us do about it?

▸ Follow the food-saving suggestions of the President's Famine Emergency Committee below. You may think your saving is small but your saving multiplied by millions of others will help make the United States the granary of democracy, the leader among the nations who are working through the UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION.

▸ Write your Congressman and ask him to use every means at his disposal to speed shipments of food to Europe.

▸ The future belongs to those who prove themselves the true friends of mankind.

H. J. Heinz
President, H. J. Heinz Company

Here is what you can do to save vitally needed food:*

- Never waste bread. Make three loaves do the work of five.
- Serve potatoes more often. Try potato pancakes, potato soup and potato salad.
- Substitute fruits and other desserts for cakes and pastry.
- Serve oatmeal often. One serving equals two slices of bread in food value.
- Serve open-face sandwiches and pies.
- Use less wheat cereals and other wheat products.
- Save and re-use fats and oils.
- Serve fewer fried foods.
- Salvage all fats that can't be re-used and turn them in to your butcher or grocer.
- Use fewer oil dressings—more boiled dressings for salads.

BUY—COOK—SERVE SPARINGLY!
* AS RECOMMENDED BY THE PRESIDENT'S FAMINE EMERGENCY COMMITTEE.

Housing In Parks

Few postwar projects are more urgent than the provision of housing for veterans. We think the time has passed, however, when park land may be appropriately used for emergency housing. During the war, when barracks and dormitories had to be erected with all possible speed, there was some excuse for temporarily using park land. But the desirability of finding sites outside of the parks for all postwar housing seems to us self-evident.

The District Commissioners requested the temporary use of some 25 or 30 sites on park land for the erection of demountable houses. Most of the sites appear to be quite unsuitable for that purpose. Some would have to be graded, thus minimizing their subsequent usefulness for park purposes. Others could not be used without destroying their beauty consisting of trees and shrubs. Still others are now providing needed recreational space or will soon be developed for that purpose. It is possible that some minor park areas can be appropriately used for the erection of demountable housing, but they are too small to accommodate any substantial number of veterans.

One of the principal arguments for the use of park land seems to be that otherwise privately owned land would have to be leased at a considerable cost. That cost would be offset at least in part by avoiding the installation of water, sewer and other facilities on land from which they would later have to be removed. But we do not think, in any event, that the use of park land for housing can be justified as an economy measure. Accept the validity of that argument and our parks that have been developed at great cost and effort would soon be real estate subdivisions. Surely the time has come for the planning of housing programs that will not further encroach upon the park system.

Foreign Loans

The question is arising in sharp form as to how far we can go in making foreign loans for reconstruction and development purposes and how those loans should be apportioned among would-be borrowers. The limit of our ability to lend certainly cannot be gauged by the extent of the borrower's need. If need were the only test of adequacy, the British loan would have been much larger, and France would be asking for a good deal more than a billion dollars. The limit is not even determined by the amount of indebtedness we may be willing to impose upon ourselves in order to assist others. For, serious though our public debt burden now is, we should have incurred and no doubt successfully carried a much heavier one had the war lasted a year or so longer.

The most severely limiting factor that we have to consider at this time is the adverse effect of foreign loans on our own production effort. Purchases made by foreigners with borrowed funds add to inflationary pressures, and, unless great care is exercised, such export buying may retard reconversion here by withdrawing scarce goods. The fact that the Department of Commerce has recommended extension for another year of the Export Control Act is evidence of the sort of thing we are up against. Demands for restrictions on exports are growing and additions are being made to the list of articles subject to licensing as more commodities are brought under CPA allocation orders. The spread of famine over vast areas and our obligation to send food surpluses where they will save a maximum number of lives also impose restrictions on foreign purchasers of our foodstuffs, both borrowers and owners of dollar balances.

The Export-Import Bank is the lending agency that will have to take care of minimum needs of borrowing countries for reconstruction and development until such time as the International Bank is ready to take over that function. The bank's policy of discouraging the use of credits to purchase commodities in short supply and to encourage the buying of more abundant goods will afford additional safeguards against inflation and minimize the adverse effects of foreign borrowing on the reconversion program.

In stressing the importance of protecting the domestic economy against the impact of foreign loans, we do not intend to suggest that all loans should be withheld until domestic abundance has succeeded dearth. Nor do we mean to suggest that foreign loans should be so niggardly or so hedged about with restrictions as to make them of little value to borrowing countries. In helping England, France and other nations devastated by war to restore their shattered economic structure, we are also helping to create the kind of postwar world in which we and they can engage in mutually profitable trade. And we are at the same time helping to reduce international political tensions that menace our future. In weighing appeals for financial aid we must, however, translate dollars into goods and decide to what extent we are prepared to part with those goods even at some sacrifice of our own immediate objectives.

Peron's Future

The Argentine answer to the Blue Book does not dispose of the damning record that set Argentina apart from the Americas as the surreptitious ally of Nazi Germany. It does not because it cannot clear up charges belonging to documentary history. But the Argentina rejoinder makes one very plausible point. This is that the Nazification of the controlling clique in Argentina belongs to a past which was whitewashed by the Argentine entry into the United Nations. That cannot be gainsaid. Nor can it be denied that the whitewashing was done under the leadership of the United States. It was this egregious act that undermined the struggle that Ambassador Braden was waging for the extrusion of Nazi influence and the return to decent government in Buenos Aires.

Actually the Blue Book simply confirmed out of findings in Germany the known facts in possession of the State Department. These facts justified Secretary Hull's effort to treat the military regime in Buenos Aires as a pariah of the Americas. But his effort was thrown overboard at San Francisco. To the regime we had pilloried we ourselves opened the gates into the company of the peace-loving nations. When the enormity of what we had done at San Francisco was borne in upon us by a renewal of excesses in Buenos Aires, we backtracked again, and Peron reverted to his status in our eyes as a pariah. But the damage had already been done—indeed, was compounded by our change of front. Colonel Peron has profited by the lack of coherence and the bewildering shifts in United States policy.

This was not, of course, the reason that accounted for Peron's victory at the polls. The primarily cause of that event was that the hastily organized Democratic front was unable to overcome the effects of almost three years of military government. Military government in Buenos Aires was nothing if not ruthless. It suppressed civil liberties, outlawed the political parties, and invaded their offices and destroyed their files. When it was decided to hold elections, the parties had to be reorganized, and then had to develop a collective opposition to Peron. Their campaigning was further impeded by the maintenance of a state of siege. This was lifted only for the 24 hours of election day, and, as Senor Ghioldi, the Socialist leader, put it, "24 hours of free voting failed to destroy the effect of 24,000 hours of dictatorship." In all these circumstances Peron's victory is not difficult to understand.

The fact now has to be faced that Peron has been elected President of Argentina. Nor was it a phoney election. Dr. Tamborini, Colonel Peron's opponent, spoke of the fairness of the election immediately on the heels of it. He gave full credit to the army for insuring the fairness of the appeal to the ballot box. Perhaps this was a tactical mistake, but the tribute stands on the record, and, so far as we can make out, it was justified. The army, anxious to rehabilitate itself in general esteem, did a good job. Thus the ground is removed for opposition to the Peron regime that Peron had simply captured the administrative machinery of Argentina. He stands forth today as the nation's free choice.

Such an acknowledgment does not mean that our Government should let bygones be bygones. But it does mean that we should be open-minded in case Peron, with his position legitimized, should seek a rapprochement with the United States. The past cannot be undone. But it can be expiated by a change of approach toward the Nazi elements that have been harbored in Peron's Argentina. This would be the first test of any change of heart in Peron now that he has won the Presidency. A second test is necessary for the peace of mind of Argentina's neighbors. What is needed in Buenos Aires is a demonstration on Peron's part that he is prepared actively to assist the organization of true fellowship in the Americas. Argentina's neighbors require to be shown by deeds and not words of his disavowal of aggression. The best way, in our opinion, to show it is for Peron to reconsider the joint intervention proposal of Uruguay. Freedom from fear still has to be won in the Americas, largely as the result of three years of antic saber rattling on the part of the military rulers of Argentina.

Kilgore Committee

It is difficult to understand the reasoning which prompted the Senate Committee on Audits and Accounts to recommend a drastic cut in funds for the important investigatory work of the subcommittee on war mobilization of the Military Affairs Committee. This group, established in 1942 under the chairmanship of Senator Kilgore, has proved itself one of the most effective congressional goads to executive action. And it has made available to Congress and the public a wealth of illuminating material on the technological aspects of war mobilization. It has much significant work still to do. The Military Affairs Committee requested for it an appropriation of $57,000. But this request, as it goes to the floor today, has been cut, inexplicably, to a mere $18,000.

Out of the subcommittee's studies on the technological resources of the United States, there has emerged, in accordance with a request from the President, a bill for the creation of a national science foundation. Embodying the best features of conflicting proposals after long and careful hearings, the bill is a thoroughly sound and considered piece of legislation; the subcommittee which developed it should stay on the job to see it through to enactment. Even more vital, perhaps, are the studies of the subcommittee in connection with German cartels and hidden resources for waging war. Captured German documents dealing with Nazi infiltration into foreign countries and economic reserves have been analyzed by the Kilgore group; the findings thus far disclosed make completion of the job seem imperative. The Senate would be very imprudent indeed, we think, to frustrate at this juncture one of the most useful of its own instruments for dealing with postwar problems.

Semantics

In the House, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas of California, in trying to express her own political credo, has given her colleagues a workable definition of the abused and confused term "democracy." In doing so she administered a thoroughly deserved rebuke to those who habitually apply the even more loosely construed label "communism" to every proposal designed to make democracy a healthily functioning system for the advancement of popular purposes and the satisfaction of popular needs.

"I am jealous for democracy," said Mrs. Douglas. "I do not like to see the things that democracy can accomplish credited to communism. Through the years democracy has given the people of the United States more freedom and a higher standard of living than any other system that we know—and it has done so with less inequity, less persecution, less infringement on the rights of free thinking, free speech and free action than under any other form of government anywhere else in the world. I do not want the things that democracy has done ascribed to anything other than the democratic process."

There are some, however—and certain of the Congresswoman's colleagues are among them—who consider communistic every effort to assert even these principles. When men and women join to secure public acceptance of social or political ideas in which they happen to believe, the association is sometimes called subversive. A program for full employment or for veterans' housing or for health insurance is said by some who do not like it to have emanated from Moscow. Whatever the merits of the measures free men propose and seek to advance, the espousal of them is an essential part of the democratic process. "One of the great privileges of democracy," as Mrs. Douglas observed, "is the privilege to make mistakes—the privilege to say foolish things, the privilege to expound ideas with which others violently disagree, the privilege to say them without being tracked down and labeled subversive. . . ." Indeed, these are privileges essential to our way of life.

Nothing has done so much to raise Communist prestige in this country as the habit fallen into by a few of attributing to the Communists everything that is progressive. The Communists don't deserve such kudos. Progressivism is a thoroughly American and thoroughly democratic characteristic.

Test Or Demonstration

It is denied that there is any reason for the postponement of the atomic test at sea other than the stated one that the congressional delegation might be prevented from attendance by pressure of work. The fact remains that the doubts persist. It is felt that the postponement has been ordered because of the crisis of confidence in the world of nations. There is no reason to think that the official explanation is not the correct one, but the existence of the doubts is inevitable. They are inevitable because of the decision to have a test instead of a demonstration.

The chief justification and value of showing the atomic bomb in action must lie in the influence it may have upon world opinion. If its impact is to make men everywhere realize the tremendous meaning of the change in our environment which has been effected by the release of atomic energy, then the cost can be considered negligent. If it serves to dramatize the urgency of the peril to which mankind is exposed so long as this energy remains uncontrolled, the demonstration can be reckoned a splendid contribution to world peace. The essence of a demonstration is, of course, publicity. This is why we have so persistently urged that representatives of all nations be invited to observe the drama to be enacted off the Marshall Islands.

HOMESTEADERS

When earthly seeds are planted in the white fields of the moon,
What alchemy will work in them, that they may be in tune?
What strange celestial crops will grow from out that pearly ground,
And what pale birds will search for them, with high unearthly sound?

Will cattle from our fair green fields, grow silver-white and shine
In that reflected glow,—in air attenuate and fine?
And would the pioneers to that remote and gleaming sphere,
Ever return to breathe again earth's mundane atmosphere?

Or would they, too, be luminous, who ate the sacred fruit
From lustrous trees that spring up from a deep and lunar root?
And if that food were sent in giant space-
ships to the earth,
Could it survive, that we might know its rare,
pellucid birth?

What will they find upon that dark and hidden other side
The eye of man has not beheld; what wild and rolling tide
May its black oceans guide them on—to what mysterious shore,
If they attempt to enter through that awful, unknown door?

Earle's Statement

George Earle, a former Governor of Pennsylvania and former Minister to Bulgaria, has recently been making some of the most inflammatory and dangerous statements I have ever heard.

Earle is certain that when the Russians are able to manufacture the atom bomb that they will wipe the Americans off the face of the earth. What justification does he have for this hysterical statement? Since it is quite likely that the Russians will be able to manufacture such bombs within a few years, what does prophet Earle advocate—an immediate attack on Russia?

Everyone who knows Russia at all knows their fear and suspicion of the "outside world." Most of us feel that Russian fears are exaggerated, their suspicions of us unfounded. But when you read statements such as Mr. Earle's, you wonder. How can the Russians escape feeling that the democratic world is hostile to them, and that they must protect their borders and secure whaever atomic "secrets" there may be, by fair means or foul?

I fought for freedom and democracy once, and I would do it again if need be, but can't we at least try peace first? Can't we try to get along with Russia before we decide to fight?

Safety In Mines

Your editorial of March 28 on John L. Lewis is very interesting. I recall when some weeks back a disastrous accident occured in a Kentucky mine you took Mr. John L. Lewis severely to task, just why I could not quite gather, for in my innocent way of thinking I thought safety should be a responsibility of the operators and the Government. You said at that time that Lewis should put more efforts into demanding better safety conditions in coal mines.

Now Mr. Lewis comes along and does exactly as you suggested. Instead of loaning him your support, which I had expected you to do, you condemn him. Even more disconcerting, you say nothing against the operators who state that they will not follow out the suggestions of Federal mine inspectors. I am very much puzzled by this turn of events, especially since I am told by people who have lived in Washington and read your paper for some time that yours is what they term a very "liberal" sheet.

I bet ten to one that the above letter will not appear in print. Getting away from the sarcasm, though, if you can recognize it, is it any wonder that American labor considers the newspapers as definitely unfriendly to them?

LEO BROPHY.

Editor's Note: The Post has applauded Mr. Lewis' action in bringing mine safety conditions to public attention, but has criticized the intolerance with which his demands have been presented.

Black Market Check

Price controls on meat and other food products appear to be threatened by a large and rapidly growing black market in these products. Those who oppose price controls are arguing that this fact merely proves that the controls are unenforceable and should be immediately abolished. Thus we are to overcome the evil that threatens us by embracing it; by legalizing what we wish to prevent—the "boom and bust" of inflation.

This is probably the only solution possible in the eyes of those who are more interested in getting rid of all restraints upon their freedom to profiteer than in trying to feed and clothe the world's cold and starving millions. "War is hell" is a familiar phrase, but for a great part of the world's population, "peace" thus far, at least, has not been much better, nor is it likely to be so until we decide to lend them a helping hand. It is hard to believe that Americans generally are so greedy or so stupid as to be willing to pay any price (so long as they have the "price," that is) for another steak or pound of butter. It seems more likely that the greed is of an organized sort and that the numbers involved are relatively small.

It would be far better to place real penalties on all major violations of price regulations. Buyers knowingly paying over ceiling prices should be heavily fined. Where there was a reasonable doubt if a given violation was deliberate, a warning would be sufficient. Black market operators should be given prison sentences rather than merely fines which too often are so small as to be of little value. It is not enough, of course, merely to provide heavier penalties. We must also appropriate money for enforcement (this would need be only a small fraction of the money now going into the black market) and do everything possible to make the controls work.

There is as yet no evidence whatever that unlimited price increases will increase production of scarce items. On the contrary, the fear and uncertainty which will almost certainly result will very likely slow up the process of reconversion. What is needed is improved and strengthened controls; well administered and generally supported. HARLESS WAGONER.
Arlington, Va., March 25.

Understanding Russia

If Americans were to put the same effort into understanding Russia that they put into denouncing her, the outlook for peace would be much brighter. Russia is seeking what we too seek—security—only she does it in a less self-righteous way. Let us draw a few comparisons.

We secretly invented the A-bomb and keep it for our protection; Russia secretly tried to discover the engineering know-how of the bomb for her protection. We demand Pacific bases for our security; Russia demands outlying bases for her security. We have troops in Iceland, China and elsewhere to safeguard American interests; Russia has troops in neighboring states to safeguard her interests.

If we are as unselfish as we assume to be, why do we not internationalize the Panama Canal? Then we could speak consistently about internationalizing Europe's waterways. If we are as trustworthy as we want others to believe, why do we not destroy our A-bombs and lead the world into outlawing this weapon which may yet destroy the human race?

Atom Control

Thanks for your remarkable article of March 15 concerning the military toehold Senator Vandenberg let into the Senate with his amendment. Are the Senators willing to let the military take over their job (policy making) and right out of their hands, where we civilians trustingly placed it concerning the most vital issue of all time?

Rules For Job Seekers

On of the main failures of many applicants now making the rounds of employment is their lack of preparation in relating their past education and experience in connection with positions now open. And there are jobs open in many companies, positions which will be filled by the applicant who can best demonstrate to the various employment managers his individual ability to perform the duties of the job.

Before an applicant presents himself to an employment office he should be reasonably well dressed, clean and neat, but not overdressed. Be conservative. If recently discharged from the armed forces, the job seeker should by all means bring his discharge or a photostatic copy with him and also the separation record which he receives in the separation centers and upon which are recorded his MOS (military occupational specialty) in the Army and a general description of his main duties.

This is particularly important for personnel long in the service who are dependent upon the experience gained therein as their main experience. Many personnel and employment offices have directors or managers who were in personnel work in the armed forces and who are familiar with work done therein and recorded upon service records, and these records will assist them in correlating the military background with a possible work skill required in the civilian job.

When the applicant actually arrives to discuss a job, he should also be prepared to make out an application form before being interviewed. Unless the interviewer has a complete description of the applicant's education and experience, it will be highly difficult for him to discuss any particular position. In the event that the applicant makes a favorable impression, but is not qualified for positions presently open, the application can be filed and referred to in reference to future vacancies.

Failure of many personnel offices actually to employ applications on file is admittedly a handicap to many applicants, but this practice is not tolerated in a properly operated personnel department. Applications filed within 90 days of a vacancy occurring should be and generally are considered, and the applicant may be recalled for another interview.

It is in the actual discussion of a position now open that many applicants who otherwise would be considered fail. All companies have their positions classified from the standpoint of rate and type of skill necessary to perform the duties thereof, the education and previous experience if believed necessary, and the rate of pay believed fair for the skills involved. Naturally, there are high and low ranges in each category or requirement but it is useless for an applicant to attempt to "sell" the interviewer on a position which is entirely out of range of his general background.

If you are changing jobs, don't expect to get a salary substantially above what you have been making unless you possess a special skill. If you are going into a field new to you, take a common sense attitude toward the job, salary and skill involved as compared to your previous experience. In conversing with the employment manager, be natural—don't be a high-pressure salesman and don't talk too much.

Finally, if you leave the employment office without a definite offer but still have made what you consider a fair impression upon the employment manager, why not telephone him a week or so later and tell him you are still interested in the type of job you discussed during the interview? Once in a while the result may pay off in an unexpected dividend.

Mustering-Out Pay

Veterans discharged prior to February 3, 1944, were required to make application for their mustering-out pay. Hidden in the Mustering-Out Act is a clause that application must be made within two years from the date of the act. Many early-discharged veterans refrained from applying for their mustering-out pay in order to claim their money when they really needed it. Such veterans now are receiving a form letter which states in substance, "So sorry, true you are an honorably discharged veteran but your application is overdue and therefore you are no longer entitled to mustering-out pay."

To my knowledge there was no advertisement of this expiration date. To the vet who gave his life into the care of Uncle Sam, such technical penny-chiseling seems unworthy of the dignity of his country.

Washington Calling

Positive Action

WHAT IS HAPPENING in the United Nations Security Council must be considered as part of the whole complex tangle of world relationships. The United Nations meeting has provided a new framework for the quarrel between Russia, on the one hand, and Britain and the United States on the other.

It was the misfortune of the United Nations to inherit that quarrel at the outset. But that could hardly have been averted if the new organization was to have any reality.

The ground on which Secretary Byrnes stood was sound. If small nations cannot even present their grievances, then the U. N. is an empty shell.

Again, it was the misfortune of the U. N. that the test came over a small nation which is a backward, feudal country torn by internal dissensions. That does not, however, alter the basic principles under which the Iranian case was raised.

RECENTLY, in another part of the world, the same kind of issue arose.

Toward the end of the conquest of Germany, Soviet forces moved onto the island of Bornholm in the Baltic. Bornholm is a Danish island commanding the approaches to both Denmark and Sweden.

How long did the Russians intend to occupy Bornholm? That was the question which caused shivers of apprehension throughout Scandinavia. If the Russians were to remain there permanently, then the Baltic would indeed be a Soviet lake and Denmark and Sweden would live constantly under the gun.

The Danish government not long ago addressed a tactful question to Moscow. Shortly thereafter Soviet troops began to leave Bornholm. The evacuation is progressing and Danish troops are now beginning to occupy the island.

If the issue before the Security Council had been Denmark instead of Iran, the principle would have been much clearer. Denmark is an advanced democracy. The Danish people have stood united throughout the war. But Iran or Denmark, the cause is the same. It is the right of small nations to independence and integrity.

What has characterized the U. N. in the months of its awkward, mewling infancy is its negativism. It has seemed to stand before the world for the sole purpose of saying no.

You can argue, and perhaps rightly, that the organization is too new to expect positive, constructive action from it. That answer may do for the present. It will not suffice for long.

If the United Nations seems to exist merely to preserve the world as it is, then inevitably it will fail. If it is no more than a policeman with a stock to keep the status quo in every corner, then it will go down.

What the moment desperately needs is creative, courageous thinking that goes beyond the mere do's and don'ts of things as they are. That is the kind of thinking which went into the report by the State Department's committee of experts on atomic control. It is this kind of trail-blazing which the U. N. must do if it is to grow up into a vigorous, effective organization.

The Iranian case points up that need as well as any issue could. One thing is as clear as day, and that is that Iran will not remain what it is for long.

IN THIS CONNECTION, a significant news story recently came from the United Press in London. It quoted a Britsh Foreign Office "spokesman" as saying that Britain would like to see Iran's "unexploited oil resources" placed under international control.

This is rather vague. Would "unexploited oil resources" include the vast undeveloped reserves held by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.? Or would they include only those reserves that have not yet been staked out by any of the great powers?

But the important fact is that the British have clearly signalled their desires. This may have been intended to put the initiative up to us. If it is to have any chance of succeeding, it must come quickly. Some such move should have been made months ago, if only as evidence of the intention of Britain and America to try to remove one of the chief sources of trouble in the Middle East.

The United States State Department and the British Foreign Office have drifted into the current crisis as one drifts in a becalmed sailskipper's cabin is a good chest of boat. What is needed is the action.

Fifth Aspirant In Democratic Governor Race

Baltimore, April 1 (AP).—A new candidate entered the race for the Democratic nomination for Maryland Governor today.

Vincent F. Long of Baltimore filed his certificate of candidacy with the secretary of state at Annapolis, bringing to five the number seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Long filed for Governor in 1942 but withdrew before the election. He ran for the senatorial nomination in 1940 and 1944, trailing far behind the major candidates each time.

Other candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination are Stephen B. Peddicord, Baltimore; William Preston Lane, jr., Hagerstown; Representative H. Street Baldwin, Baltimore County, and State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, Crisfield.

Baldwin, Lane and Tawes are considered the major contenders.

Baldwin's voting record in Congress and his opposition to the CIO-Political Action Committee were criticized yesterday by Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt, executive secretary of the Uublic School Association of Baltimore.

Mrs. Bauernschmidt, long active in civic affairs, asserted that during last fall's racing season, Baldwin was "absent twice as often as he was present" at congressional roll calls. She termed his attacks on the CIO-PAC a "strictly phoney" issue.

Baldwin replied in a statement today that Mrs. Bauernschmidt's assertions were "utterly untrue and misleading" and hinted that there was a political connection between her and Attorney General William Curran, who has opposed his candidacy.

"It is quite a coincidence that Mr. Curran warned me that if I filed for Governor he was sure Mrs. Bauernschmidt would come out against me," Baldwin said. "While Mrs. Bauernschmidt has a perfect right to make her own selection among the candidates for Governor, I am not any more frightened at her stand than I am of Mr. Curran."

Meanwhile, State Senator John B. Funk of Frederick, a candidate for State comptroller, attacked Lane's recent pledge to abolish the State real estate tax if elected Governor. Funk asserted that Lane's proposal showed a "lack of understanding of the fiscal structure of the State."

Funk is allied with the Baldwin forces.

In the Republican camp, Mayor Theodore McKeldin of Baltimore received a warning from the man he unseated in 1943, former Mayor Howard W. Jackson, long a Democratic power.

Inactive in recent campaigns, Jackson warned that "Mr. McKeldin had better not awaken me," or he might find the former mayor running against him again.

Jackson recalled that in 1931 he was aroused by reports that he didn't stand a chance of being elected, so "I went out and won and stayed in the City Hall 12 more years."

Streptomycin Tests for TB Held Hopeful

Roanoke, Va., April 1 (AP).—Dr. Selman A. Waksman, the discoverer of streptomycin, said today that in laboratory tests the new drug has been effective against tuberculosis germs but it is still highly uncertain whether or not it will be effective in the treatment of tuberculosis patients.

The noted Rutgers University microbiologist is on the visiting faculty of the Gill Memorial Hospital's spring graduate course for eye, ear and throat specialist which began today.

But, he said "We do not want to raise any false hopes on that score and have thousands of people suffering from tuberculosis clamoring for the drug when further investigation may reveal that it is not adapted for treating the disease."

"Results of our experiments so far have been encouraging, but more than that I cannot say."

He revealed that Merck & Co., pharmaceutical manufacturer, is building a $3,500,000 plant at Elkton, Rockingham County, which will be the largest producer of streptomycin in the world. The new drug is also being manufactured by 15 other companies, but now is available only in limited quantities.

Dr. Waksman said indications are that streptomycin will be available for "urgent needs" within a year but predicted that it will be some time before there is enough available for everyone who would benefit by its treatment.

Autoists Cautioned On Va. Tag Deadline

Richmond, Va., April 1 (AP).—C. F. Joyner, jr., State comisssioner of motor vehicles, pointing to the 11 purchasing days remaining and urged Virginia motorists today not to delay buying their 1946 license tags until the eleventh-hour rush.

The deadline for supplanting the black-on-white tags with the new white-on-black ones is midnight, April 15. With the subtraction of two Sundays and two half days for the closing hours on Saturday, only 11 days remain in which to obtain the tags and beat the deadline. Technically, the deadline was midnight, March 31, but a 15-day period of grace gives the motor vehicle owners the additional two weeks time.

Driver, 19, Is Held In Crash Fatality

Salisbury, Md., April 1 (AP).—A 19-year-old youth was being held in Ocean City, Md., today on charges of manslaughter and unauthorized use of an automobile after his companion, also 19, was fatally injured here in an accident involving the automobile, State Trooper Samuel Sherwell reported.

He said the dead youth was Isaac Hall, Ocean City.

Hall died yesterday, Sherwell ssaid, after the car careened into a pole and the youth was thrown through the windshield.

State Guard Receives Praise For Efficiency in Vepco Case

Richmond, Va., April 1 (AP).—Members of the Virginia State Guard who were called out to serve draft orders on Virginia Electric and Power Co. employes last week received commendations today from Governor Tuck and Brigadier General S. Gardner Waller, the adjutant general.

In a letter to Brigadier General E. E. Goodwin, commanding the Guard, General Waller said:

"I have the honor and pleasure to extend to you and every officer and man of the Virginia State Guard the grateful appreciation of our governor, Honorable William M. Tuck, the commander-in-chief of land and naval forces of the Commonwealth, for their patriotic service—cheerfully, promptly and efficiently rendered when, through them, he exercised his legal powers to enforce the laws of this state.

"As the adjutant general of Virginia, I respectfully recognize their loyalty, courage and unquestioned obedience to his command.

"It is desired that you convey this information to all officers and men concerned."

Officials indicated that it would be some time yet before a report could be compiled on the cost to the State of the mobilization of the approximately 2500 guardsmen who were on duty Friday and Saturday in connection with the Vepco strike threat that was finally averted by a company-union agreement to arbitrate.

Baltimore Tie-in On D. C. Parkway Still Undecided

Baltimore, April 1 (AP).—Maryland is ready to go ahead with its share of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, with funds transferred from other projects, but the State is still waiting for the city to decide where it will tie into the new road.

Robert M. Reindollar, roads commission chairman, said yesterday the State has the money for its share of the parkway construction, an estimated $7,500,000. But, he explanied, the funds would have to be transferred from other project allotments in the three-year, 50-million-dollar roads building program.

The State's portion of the new Baltimore-Washington Highway lies between Waterloo and this city. The project already has been started by the Federal Government.

The city is expected to decide soon where it will tie in with the parkway. A freeway across west Baltimore, connecting with the end of the State road at the city line, has been suggested and $500,000 asked for surveys and preliminary plans.

Va. Wreck Halts Train Traffic For Nine Hours

Lynchburg, Va., April 1 (AP).—Southbound passenger trains of the Southern Railway began moving through Lynchburg late this morning after a tieup of nearly nine hours at Rockfish River Bridge in central Virginia, where 18 cars of a northbound freight left the rails at 12:50 a. m. and piled across both tracks.

Railroad officials here said the wreck caused no personal injury but that property damage was high. Northbound trains continued to move through Lynchburg on schedule.

The first train to arrive from the North reached Monroe, a short distance outside of Lynchburg at 9:45 a. m. It had been scheduled to reach here at 3:25 a. m.

Frederick Youth Fined In Manslaughter Case

Frederick, Md., April 1 (Spl.).—Harold E. Edwards, 19, this city, was found guilty on charges of manslaughter by automobile and reckless driving by Magistrate Edward J. Smith in Peoples' Court and fined $110 and costs. A year's sentence in the House of Correction was suspended.

Edwards was charged in the death of James R. Dixon, 15-year-old Frederick high school student, who was injured in an accident near New Market on Route 40 last March 9. In imposing sentence, the magistrate said he took into consideration the fact that it was Edwards' first offense and that he is now going to college.

Three Girl Hikers, Lost in Va. Hills, Are Found Safe

Norton, Va., April 1 (AP).—Three Norton girl hikers, lost for several hours on Stone Mountain, returned to their homes last night, ending a hunt that sent four searching parties of some 50 men and boys into the mountain.

The hikers, who became separated from a fourth member of a Sunday afternoon hinking party, found their way to the home of a Stone Mountain resident, who was driving them back to Norton, when they met one of the searching parties ascending the mountain.

Search for the trio—Ida Mae Barton, about 21, and Mary Lynn Barton, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Barton, and Doria Livingston—was launched after Beth Still returned here about 7 p. m. and reported her companions lost. After becoming separated from the others, she found her way to the main hikhway at ramsey, 3 miles esat of here.

Elevator Accident Fatal to Md. Veteran

Westminster, Md., April 1 (AP).—Frank David McKinney, jr., 23-year-old discharged war veteran, was injured fatally today when he was caught and crushed in a freight elevator at the Farmers' Fertilizer & Feed Co. here.

Members of the Westminster fire department helped extricate McKinney from the elevator. A certificate of accidental death was issued by Dr. James Marsh, Carroll County medical examiner.

Gov. O'Conor Sifts Charges Against City Election Officer

Baltimore, April 1 (AP).—A request for the removal from office of a Baltimore City supervisor of elections, Charles A. Dorsey, on charges of "misuse of the powers of a supervisor" and "prostituting free elections" was up for consideration by Governor O'Conor today.

Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, declared yesterday he had received an affidavit from Mrs. Mary Burgess, Republican executive of Baltimore's Twentieth Ward, charging that Dorsey had withheld blanks for the nomination of ward election judges.

Mrs. Burgess stated in her affidavit that Dorsey "said he was going to hold my blanks and those of all other supporters of Mayor McKeldin's until he learned whether Mr. McKeldin was going to file for the governorship, and that if the mayor did so, the mayor's friends would be made to suffer and would not be permitted to name the judges of elections in their wards."

Dorsey said last night, "I made no such statement to Mrs. Burgess. I don't want to appear on the defensive in this matter. I haven't done anything wrong. The law says it is the supervisor of elections who shall name the ward judges—not the ward executive."

Tait's statement requested Governor O'Conor "to remove any offending supervisor from office . . . and also to send the whole matter to the grand juries, both Federal and local, for consideration of the question of malfeasance in office."

Gunshot Fatal To Bride of Ex-Veteran

Parsons, W. Va., April 1 (AP).—Death stepped in to thwart former GI Robert Lipscomb's postwar plan of establishing a home when his bride of five months was killed last night by the discharge of a rifle with which she had threatened to end her life.

The Lipscombs were to have moved into their recently purchased home at nearby Kempton today.

Lipscomb told investigating officers that his wife, Mrs. Ora Pearl Lipscomb, 21, had gone upstairs at the home of her father, Seymour Radcliffe, at Davis, W. Va., in anger following a dispute with her husband and a sister, Ann Ruth Radcliffe.

He was reported by police as saying a heard his wife slam shut the bolt on a .30-caliber Springfield Army rifle, and that he rushed upstairs to find her sitting on the bed with the gun in her hand.

He said she greeted him with: "You think I won't shoot, don't you?"

As she pronounced the words, he said, the wife swung the rifle around, and it went off when its butt hit the side of the bed.

The bullet went through her body near her stomach. She died 30 minutes later after receiving emergency aid from a Davis physician. Lipscomb said his wife had been in ill health.

Blossom Festival Pageant in Final Rehearsal Stage

Winchester, Va., April (Spl.).—Garland R. Quarles, director and author of the pageant which will feature both days of Winchester's Apple Blossom Festival May 2 and 3, stated today that rehearsals are now in the final stage, but would be continued throughout April.

The pageant, titled "Our Heritage", produced by the teachers and students of Winchester schools has been a featured part of the festival program since 1929.

More than 2000 school children dressed in colorful costumes enact this pageant of springtime in pantomine, dances and songs.

Assisting Quarles in the pageant are: Mrs. Mildred Lewis, high school director; Mrs. Dorothy Hawthorne, assistant; Mrs. Elizabeth Sale, elementary director; Mrs. F. DeCarlo, assistant; Otis Sargent, boy's groups; Miss Mary Boxley, costumes; Miss Katherine Pannill, properties; Miss Gwendolyn Haynes, chorus; E. P. Browning, building and grounds; H. Gaylen Strunce, band; Mrs. Lawrence Miller, pianist; Miss Lola Moore, primary school participant; Mrs. Gertrude Peery, assistant; Archie Frye, assistant.

Eastern Shore Frost Damages Strawberries

Norfolk, Va., April 1 (AP).—A frost which blanketed most of the Eastern Shore area last night caused some damage to strawberries, the State experiment station at Diamond Springs reported today. Temperatures, which ranged from a high of 40 degrees at Norfolk to a low of 31 degrees at Snow Hill, Md., probably affected the early varieties of the fruit which now are in bloom.

The local weather bureau, which reported a temperature of 37 degrees at the airport last night said temperatures will be about 15 degrees higher along the coast tonight.

4 Arrested in Raid On Va. Cocking Bout

Suffolk, Va., April 1 (AP).—Three Norfolk men and one from Lynnhaven were arrested by State and county police yesterday in a raid on a cocking main at Drivers, near here.

More than 200 spectators, a large majority from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News and other out-of-town places were cheering a battle as the police entered.

The four men who were arrested were released from Nansemond County jail on bail of $500 each. Date for a hearing will be announced later.

SCC Delays Five Airline Applications

Richmond, Va., April 1. @.—Another six-month postponement of applications of five corporations for expanding air service in Virginia was authorized by the State Corporation Commission today.

It continued until October 14 hearings previously set for today on applications of Blue Ridge Air Lines, Inc., Greyhound Skyways of Virginia, Inc., Virginia Stage Lines, Inc.

Atlantic-Western already is providing air service between Richmond and some other Virginia cities and the applications of the five corporations would criss-cross Virginia with service from Washington to Bristol, Danville, Norfolk and in various other directions.

The applications originall were booked in January, 1945, but have been continuing from time to time because of war-time shortages of aircraft and equipment.

Between now and October 14, if any one of the five concerns wishes to go ahead with its application, it will be permitted to ask a hearing before that date provided 20 days notice is given to the other applicants.

Dairy Firm's Stock Issue Authorized

Richmond, Va., April 1 (AP).—Consolidated Dairy Farms, Inc., was authorized by the State Corporation Commission today to distribute in Virginia any common and preferred stock which it is authorized to issue by Federal court in the case of Hugh N. Rakes, debtor.

The authorization exempts such stock from qualification procedure under the Virginia securities law. The order would apply to such stock as the Federal district court may authorize to be issued in proceedings for a composition or extension under section 75 of the Bankruptcy Act.

Help Army, Tuck Asks

Richmond, Va., April 1 (AP).—Governor William M. Tuck has proclaimed the week of April 1-7 as Army recruiting week in Virginia and has appealed to the people of Virginia to assist the Army in its recruiting campaign.

Tuition Help Urged to Add Rural Doctors

Baltimore, April 1 (AP).—A revision of the Maryland's State scholarship policy to encourage rural youth to take up medical careers is urged by State Senator John B. Funk (D. Frederick) chairman of the senate finance committee and candidate for the Democratic nomination for State comptroller.

"We have a constant and growing problem in Maryland concerning the country doctor," Funk told the State commission on higher education. "A great many communities in Maryland are now without the services of a country doctor and the shortage seems to grow more acute by the year."

Funk also suggested that more junior colleges be established throughout the State as a means toward relieving congestion in educational institutions.

The commission was asked by the State senator to examine the "desirability on continuing scholarship aid" to St. John's College at Annapolis because of "certain types of education which are now being given through scholarship assistance."

St. John's receives $63,000 annually by the State government for 55 scholarships offered by the school. Twenty-nine are complete scholarships and 26 tuition scholarships.

Midshipman's Jail Term Suspended In Fatal Crash

Annapolis, Md., April 1 (AP).—Magistrate James G. Woodward today fined Midshipman James I. Mellencamp, 20, Mount Pleasant, Mich., $1000 and suspended a three-year house of correction sentence against him after conviction of manslaughter.

Immediately Lieut. Comdr. William L. P. Burke, Naval Academy legal officer, announced he would appeal the case.

Mellencamp was convicted Thursday after a hearing on manslaughter and reckless driving charges arising from an automobile accident last September. Elizabeth Hagood, 16, was killed and Ruby Hagood, 20, her sister, seriously injured in the mishap.

O'Conor Backs State Publicity

Annapolis, Md., April 1 (AP).—Governor O'Conor said today reports at the weekend Southern Governors conference at Lakeland, Fla., showed clearly the importance of State publicity.

"In every case there was evidence that where State publicity was active the amount returned to the State in dividends was several times greater than that laid out.

"Florida is spending more than $500,000 a year for publicity and is showing good results."

Maryland publicity, curtailed during the war, the Governor said, had not been resumed as he wished largely because increased welfare needs exhausted the State emergency fund.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

NOW THAT Colonel Peron is finally confirmed as President of Argentina, the State Department faces its toughest Pan-American problem—to recognize or not to recognize.

Strongly influencing this question may be a secret document with the initials "OK, FDR" in the corner, giving the late President's approval of Argentine recognition.

At one time Secretary Byrnes swore that such a document did not exist. He told Nelson Rockefeller, former Assistant Secretary of State, that he, Byrnes, knew FDR better than Rockefeller and that he was convinced Roosevelt could not have okayed Argentine recognition.

But Rockefeller produced the document and Byrnes had to admit that the signature was authentic. This column is now able to publish the full text of the secret Roosevelt decision to recognize Argentina.

BEHIND THIS decision were some hitherto confidential but highly important negotiations. They began in Mexico City in the winter of 1945, during the Chapultepec Conference. At that time Roosevelt was in Yalta.

At that time, also, the Foreign Ministers of Brazil, Mexico and Peru, together with the Ecuadorean Ambassador to the United States, thoroughly discussed with Nelson Rockefeller the question of Argentine recognition. In fact, they even worked out a formula by which Argentina, the only Latin American nation which had not declared war on the Axis, would join the other Pan-American nations and in return receive our recognition. The formula was:

(1) That Argentina would declare war on Germany and Japan immediately; (2) that Argentine troops would be withdrawn from Brazilian and Chilean borders; and (3) that Argentina would suggest that the Pan-American nations appoint a committee to investigate all Nazi activities throughout the hemisphere—including Argentina.

Harry Hopkins Said No

THIS FORMULA was sent by radio to FDR, then aboard his cruiser en route from Yalta. Harry Hopkins who was with him, was opposed. He did not believe Argentina should be recognized. Admiral Leahy, also with the President, had the opposite reaction. He favored recognition. In the end, Roosevelt wired back his okay.

But there were hitches in Mexico City. Argentina felt it was then too late to declare war. Simultaneously the State Department received word that the Russians were making overtures to Argentina and conniving with the Fascist elements around Peron. So the final decision at Mexico City was to leave the door open in the Chapultepec Agreement for Argentina to sign up later.

Following this, Brazilian Foreign Minister Pedro Leao Velloso flew to Washington from Mexico City and had further conferences with the State Department. Finally a new formula was devised by which Argentina would join the United Nations at San Francisco.

After it was drafted and received the approval of the Brazilian, Peruvian and Ecuadorian governments, Nelson Rockefeller took it to President Roosevelt. He read it and expressed his approval. Then young Rockefeller suggested that the document be initialed. FDR complied. It was one of the last official documents he ever signed.

Shortly after that, Roosevelt took his last journey to Warm Springs, Ga., and a few weeks later the American delegates to the United Nations Conference at San Francisco used the document as a basis for the admission of Argentina to the conference.

The formula bearing Roosevelt's initials in the margin follows in full:

"Articles 1, 3, 5 and 6 by their nature and purpose constitute a single declaration.

"It shall be acknowledged that the Argentine nation has accepted the invitation implied in the above articles when her government shall have:

"(a) Declared by decree the existence of a state of war with Germany and Japan;

"(b) Expressed conformity with the principles and declarations of the final act and complied with such principles and declarations;

"(c) Signed the Final Act of Mexico City at the Pan American Union.

"The Argentine government will then:

"(a) Be recognized by the governments of the American Nations and;

"(b) The United States as the depository state will request that Argentina be invited to sign the Joint Declaration of the United Nations."

Other Pan-American nations know all about the existence of this document and it will undoubtedly influence their attitude toward recognition of the Peron government.

UNRRA Merry-Go-Round

AFTER MAYOR LAGUARDIA was appointed to take Governor Lehman's place, delegates of hungry nations at the Atlantic City UNRRA Conference wisecracked: "We asked for 500,000 tons of wheat and you gave us a 'little flower'" . . . Without disparaging the many fine qualities of Fiorello, some felt that food problems would not be solved by an atomic bombshell . . . The LaGuardia appointment was right out of the Missouri mule. . . . Some UNRRA delegates tried to sell the Russians on Churchill as Governor Lehman's successor. They told the Russians: "He is only half English; the other half is American." Replied the Russians: "We will take him in halves." . . . Meanwhile, one million Jews in enemy countries are still being treated and fed as enemies—rather a tough sequel to the five years they suffered under Hitler.

Under the Dome

MOST COMPREHENSIVE program for penetrating the Soviet iron curtain and making friends with Soviet Russia has been put forward by Wisconsin's Senator Alexander Wiley. . . . Hollywood has decided to do something about Assistant Secretary of State Benton's request that Hollywood depict the USA as it really is rather than a land of cowboys and gangsters. A $2,500,000 picture tentatively called "Magic in the Air" will be produced by the Gerrold T. Brandt group. . . . Congratulations to Commander John Steele of the American Legion for finally going to bat 100 per cent on the veterans' housing program. Best veterans' job of "telling" Congress on housing hitherto was done by the American Veterans Committee with the AMVETS also active. The Veterans of Foreign Wars were on record as favoring the bill, but weren't so active . . . Congress has its knife out for one of the lesser-known Government agencies which, without any fanfare, is doing an A-1 job—the Tariff Commission. Just as the State Department is about to embark on new tariff treaties, Congress decides to lop off the tariff experts who prepare all the trade data for the State Department . . . Charles Wakefield Cadman, famed American composer, has written a new song, "Clear the Way," dedicated to labor writer Lewis Booth.

Norman Thomas Sees Peace With Soviets in Opposing Draft

Socialist Leader Norman Thomas called on Congress yesterday to let the Draft Act die May 15, saying:

"While I fear the future as matters now drift, I am sure that we are not on the eve of war with the USSR."

In testimony prepared for Senate Military Committee hearings on the subject of extending selective service, Thomas cited a previous assertion by Secretary of War Patterson that without the draft the Army might fall 170,000 men short of its needs by July 1, 1947.

Saying "we are grateful to Secretary Patterson for exposing by his own figures the weakness of his own case," the white-haired Socialist added:

"A bewildered administration is not merely trying to stampede Congress and the public . . . for the sake of 170,000 men. It is trying to cover over its own lack of a proper foreign policy or of an interim military policy during the period of transition towards a peaceful world."

Speaking of "the fear of Russia which the advocates of conscription cleverly exploit," Thomas declared:

"I also am afraid of Russia, or rather of Stalin and his blindly devoted world-wide Communist Party. . . . While I fear the future as matters now drift, I am sure that we are not on the eve of war with the U. S. S. R. No nation will so soon endure another world war. . . .

"The first step that must be taken to end fear of Russia is American leadership in a balanced program fit for peace. . . . In the world of the atomic bomb there is neither peace nor security in anything less than complete national disarmament down to the level of forces necessary to maintain internal order. . . .

"It is unreasonable, however, to think that we shall get world disarmament . . . unless we also get a general liquidation of all forms of imperialism, Russian or colonial, political or economic."

John C. Williamson, a spokesman for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, asked a one-year extension of the draft as an interim measure. He said "failure of the volunteer system might weaken our position during these critical times."

The CONVAIR-240

JET EXHAUST PROPULSION — FOR ADDED SPEED! The Convair-240 is the first commercial transport plane to utilize the jet exhaust principle of propulsion for added power and speed.

40 PASSENGERS — AT 300 M. P. H.! Two Pratt & Whitney Engines — of the same type used on the Liberator bomber, but even more powerful — enable the Convair-240 to cruise at 300 miles per hour and better. Either engine, alone, would enable the Convair-240 to take off fully loaded and climb to over 15,000 feet!

"AIR BRAKES" FOR SMOOTHER LANDINGS! In addition to regular hydraulic wheel brakes and wing flaps, the Convair-240 has reversible-pitch propellers, which enable the plane to come to a full stop on the runway in a much shorter distance.

TRICYCLE LANDING GEAR WITH DUAL TIRES! The Convair-240 lands level, and is still level when it comes to a stop—not with its nose in the air! You don't have to negotiate an "up-hill" or "down-hill" aisle when entering or leaving the cabin. (Landing gear is fully retracted in flight.)

YOU FLY IN A QUIET, AIR-CONDITIONED CABIN! A revolutionary new type of cabin insulation reduces engine noise and vibration to an almost unbelievable minimum. You breathe fresh cool air even in desert heat—and controlled radiant heating from the cabin walls insures your comfort even when it's below zero outside.

NEW SAFETY-TYPE WING! Born of Consolidated Vultee's wartime experience in designing combat planes, the Convair-240 airfoil is an incredibly efficient high-speed wing, but with characteristics which permit lower speeds for safe landings and take-offs.

YOU ENJOY "SEA-LEVEL" COMFORT AT ANY ALTITUDE! Gone is the annoyance and discomfort caused by abrupt changes of altitude. Because of the automatically controlled system of air pressure in the Convair-240's cabin, you never have to swallow to get rid of that "funny feeling" in your ears — never feel fatigued at high altitudes.

WHY PILOTS SAY, "THANKS FOR THINKING OF US!" The cockpit of the Convair-240 is "pilot-designed." Full visibility — for added safety in taxiing, on the take-off, in flight, and for landing — is just one of many reasons why pilots have given this airliner an enthusiastic O. K.!

HEATED WINGS PREVENT ICING! The Convair-240 uses the anti-icing safety system developed by Consolidated Vultee during the war for our combat pilots. Wing edges are heated—entire wing surface is warm—ice and snow melt on contact.

YOU RELAX IN EASY-CHAIR COMFORT! A newly-designed type of reclining seat gives you all the leg room you want. In the Convair-240 there's no bumping your knees against the seat ahead. Just settle back and stretch out in comfort!

Here's why Western Air Lines ordered the Convair-240 — 20 of them!

Western Air Lines wanted a new type of airliner.

They wanted an airliner that would offer speed and advanced comfort features to the air-traveling public... an airliner that would be easy for their pilots to fly, without fatigue ...and easy for their maintenance crews to service.

So it is not surprising that for such a plane Western Air Lines came to Consolidated Vultee — the company which designed and built the famed Liberator bomber and other well-known planes... the company which operated a vast trans-Pacific airlines service for the Air Transport Command during the war.

We are now at work on Western Air Lines' contract, totaling over $5,000,000, for 20 of these truly modern new airliners. Capable of carrying 40 passengers at 300 miles per hour, the wonderful new Convair-240 will bring you a new high standard in air-travel comfort.

Russians Held Ready to Stay Active in U. N.

Moscow, April 1 (AP).—Two foreign diplomats said today they have received strong though unofficial reassurances of the Soviet Union's intention to remain a working partner in the United Nations.

There also is evidence of this intention from other sources. Alexander Leontiev, well known commentator, said the Soviet Union would throw all its weight toward obtaining a firm peace, security among peoples and application of democratic principles "in relations between countries large and small." But he made these charges:

1. A war of nerves is being directed against the Soviet Union.
2. The foreign press was developing "an anti-Soviet campaign of slander, lies and untruths which at times approaches hysteria."
3. There are propagandists for a new war abroad.
4. An "imperialistic trend" is developing in world politics.
5. Certain quarters in the United States still were attempting to employ "atomic diplomacy" to bend the world to American will.

"The war was hardly over," he said, "when the reactionary American press came out with idle talk that the domination of international affairs in all corners of the hemisphere should belong to America and that she should 'consolidate' he moral leadership all over the world."

He added there was no doubt as to the real meaning "of this American 'moral leadership'" since such discussions "usually are punctuated by references to the destructive force of the atomic bomb."

He said Britain willingly would play the role of junior partner in a British-American combination for "directing the entire world."

Detroit Transit Strike Keeps Few From Jobs

Detroit, April 1 (AP).—A strike of streetcar and coach operators tied up Detroit's municipally owned transportation system today but kept few workers from their jobs.

The strike involving 5200 members of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL) began at 4 a. m. Monday after the operators, demanding an 18-cents-an-hour wage increase rejected a counteroffer by the city of 15 cents hourly.

At a meeting with representatives of the union this noon, Mayor Edward J. Jeffries told them:

"You're not going to get a thing we previously offered, except arbitration."

The union previously rejected the Mayor's demand for arbitration as provided in the contract that expired last midnight.

"We are not going to make any offer or do any negotiation while you are on strike," Jeffries added. "Theer is no excuse for a raise in wages if living conditions remain the same. We want to go along with the national 'hold the line' policy."

There was no immediate comment from union officials, who yesterday sought unsuccessfully to persuade the car and coach operators to defer strike action.

Aside from inconvenience the transportation tie-up had little apparent effect upon the city's normal public life. Automobile plants reported production was continuing unhindered. There was, however, a noticeable decline in patronage at the city's department stores.

Akron Thumbs Rides

Akron, Ohio, April 1 (AP).—The streets of this rubber capital of 300,000 population were lined with workers thumbing rides to their jobs today as a strike of CIO transport workers paralyzed the city's transportation system.

Thousands of employes were late to jobs in major rubber plants, other factories and in stores. Automobiles jammed thoroughfares as owners normally relying on buses and streetcars drove to work.

With no further negotiations scheduled immediately, both the Transport Workers Union and the company issued statements, both saying they were willing to meet for discussions looking toward the settlement of the wage dispute.

War Memorial Proposal To Be Discussed Today

Ribbentrop Testifies on Red-Nazi Pact

Nuernberg, April 1 (U.P.).—Former German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop was permitted today ot testify concerning an alleged Russian-German agreement to split up Poland.

Soviet Prosecutor Gen. Roman A. Rudenko heatedly objected to the reading of an affidavit on the agreement which the defense attempted to introduce last week. He was overruled.

Ribbontrop testified an agreement was reached to split Poland with Russia taking all territory east of the Pilica-Bug-Narew-Jan River line and Germany taking all to the west.

Similar attempts to reach agreement on division of the Balkans and parts of Scandinavia failed, Ribontrop said. He said agreement in those areas was aimed at bringing Russia into a tripartite pact with Germany and Italy.

To Put Pressure on England

If the tripartite pact had been formed, Ribbentrop said, "it would have forced England to seek peace."

Negotiations broke down because Russia demanded Finland and parts of Bulgaria as well as access to the Baltic Sea, the Skaggerak and the Dardanelles, Ribbentrop said. Hitler turned down the Soviet demands as "excessive" after conferring with Mussolini, he said.

Ribbentrop denied telling Former Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano: "We no longer want either Danzig or the Polish corridor. We want war. This conversation was reported by the late Ciano in his diary.

603 Germans Added to List

London, April 1 (AP).—The United Nations War Crimes Commission said today 603 Germans have been added to the list of war criminals and slated for arrest.

Today's roster boosted the total to 13,582.

Disbandment Set May 1 for Yanks in China

Shanghai, April 1 (AP).—Disbandment of the U. S. Army in the China theater, May 1, and reversion of the Marine Corps in North China to Navy command was announced today by Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer.

The move will reduce U. S. Army personnel in China to 3000 or 4000 men.

It followed recent Russian assurances that Soviet occupation of Manchuria would be terminated by April 30.

The commander said 750 of the remaining Army personnel would function as an advisory group with the Chinese military. The remainder will assist in the repatriation of Japanese, handle the disposal of surplus property, move Chinese armies and equipment, staff executive headquarters at Peiping, and handle extraneous duties such as graves registration.

From Tsingtao, it was announced the Sixth Marine Division was deactivated today and its remnants reactivated into the new Third Marine brigade.

Wedemeyer is to leave Thursday for the United States. He plans to undergo a sinus operation and presumably will confer with President Truman and other officials in Washington. Lieut. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, jr., will serve as U. S. Commander after Wedemeyer's departure.

Withdrawal Tip-off Asked

Chungking, April 1 (AP).—China has requested Russia to give previous notice of Soviet withdrawal from various points in Manchuria and to permit government troops to enter them beforehand to assure a smooth transfer of garrison duties, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told the people's political council today.

At the same time he blamed the Communists for the Manchurian situation. Chiang said no Communist troops were in the territory before Japan's surrender, but entered the country after the Japanese collapse and hindered its occupation by government forces.

Communist troops were reported surrounding Changchun, Manchurian capital which the Soviets are expected to leave soon.

Pastors Condition Reported 'Not So Good'

The condition of the Rev. Peter Marchall, 44, pastor of New York Presbyterian Church, was reported "not so good" last night. Marshall collapsed in his pulpit Sunday after a heart attack.

He is a patient at George Washington University Hospital. Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn is attending him.

Russians Refuse To Attend Meeting On Grain Supply

London, April 1 (AP).—The Soviet Union has rejected an invitation to join 18 nations in the emergency conference on European cereal supplies opening here Wednesday, conference officials said tonight.

There was no explanation of the Soviet refusal. A message requesting reconsideration has been sent to Moscow, a spokesman said.

Ernest Bevin, British foreign secretary, will speak at the opening session of the conference. The United States will be represented by Thomas C. Blaisdell, chief of the United States economic mission to Europe.

Others Sought In Reich Nazi Revival Plot

Frankfurt, April 1 (AP).—United States intelligence officers said today several more subversive Nazi groups are plotting against the Allies in occupied Germany.

While Sunday's raids broke the back of the most sinister Nazi group, intelligence officers indicated this was only the beginning.

"Operation nursery," meanwhile, continued. Counteresplonage agents hunted for remnants of the smashed group headed by 32-year-old, one-armed Arthur Axmann, onetime leader of the Hitler Jugend (youth movement). About 20 per cent of the target suspects had left or fled their addresses before the agents struck Sunday.

Reports from the Canadian sector in northwest Germany said it was feared attempts to revive Nazism through a rebirth of the Hitler Jugend had spread to that area. One officer said he believed there were more Nazis in the Cities of Oldenburg and Wilhelmshaven than last June, when the war ended.

Bank Employe Is Indicted in Forgery Case

The grand jury yesterday indicted an assistant cashier of the Morris Plan Bank for allegedly forging 24 promissory notes with such fictitious names as "Oliver Wiswell," the storybook Tory.

Sidney E. Smith, jr., 38, an employe of the bank since January 11, 1943, was charged with forging and uttering in a scheme involving $9200 worth of notes, $4269 of which was repaid.

According to the indictment, Smith had authority to approve loans up to $500, and during a 13-month period opened the fictitious loan accounts.

He was detected recently when another bank employe saw him pocket money and noticed there was no customer at his desk.

Bank officials told police the man explained he was heavily in debt and that he incurred much of it at the time of his marriage in 1944, when he bought a $2500 ring for his wife, furniture and a car.

Light Jail Term Is Given Youth in Christmas Killing

Kermie Bledsoe, 19-year-old polio-crippled orphan, was sentenced yesterday in District Court to serve two to eleven months in jail for manslaughter for stabbing a man at a Christmas Eve party.

Justice David A. Pine recommended that the lad be released after the minimum term is served, and said he had a good record up to the time of the crime.

Bledsoe was convicted by a jury March 20 of stabbing John J. Heard, 55, 1011 B st. ne., with a Japanese souvenir dagger during an argument following the youth's refusal to take a drink.

He was attending a party at the apartment of his girl friend, Charlotte Mitchell, 18, at the B street address last December 24, and went to the Heard apartment to use the phone.

Bledsoe, 1914 Massachusetts ave., was a Government Printing Office employe.

U. S. Lacks Moral Stability, Dr. Sizoo Says in Lenten Talk

America lacks moral stability.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, rector of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York, brought this message yesterday to more than 1500 worshipers at noon Lenten services in the Church of the Epiphany here.

"The seeds of national decay are not in the political structure of a nation or in its social technique but in the character of its people," Dr. Sizoo said.

He added: "We seem to be suffering personally from want of integrity."

"As I go up and down the country I don't hear people ask are we turning to right of center or to left of center but do we have a center left?"

The former pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church urged a return to the teachings of Christ so as to achieve "the three great needs of today—integrity, understanding and reverence." He will preach again today and tomorrow.

A Quaker Appeal for Children in Central Europe

In our national effort to feed the world's starving millions, America lays the groundwork for peace. For hunger breeds hatred and war. True peace cannot come where children are dying; where men and women face each day with dread; where factories are smashed or idle; where fields lie fallow for lack of seed. As a free people let us now unite in an outpouring of compassion for all who suffer. Let us keep our eyes focused on the human faces of those who cry for bread that we may see them as friends and fellow-creatures — not as strangers or enemies unworthy of aid.

Quaker relief workers are busy in many lands — France, Finland, Italy, China and India. But the great challenge of the hour lies in Central Europe, from which until recently all help has been barred. Now the Committee for which we speak is preparing to aid starving children in Central Europe. We appeal for funds to send food, clothing and trained workers to Austria, Hungary and Poland where death stalks the land and famine threatens.

Especially we appeal for funds to feed the children in Germany. This is the test of Christian charity that they too shall share America's bounty. Eleven religious and charitable American agencies are now authorized to ship food, clothing and medicines to American-occupied Germany and aid will be extended to other zones as soon as possible. The Quakers are cooperating in this relief program, for children, mothers, sick and old people, using only such funds as are earmarked for German relief. Under our license a number of organizations are raising funds for German relief which we will administer. To these agencies we have issued proper credentials. We are assured of their integrity and bespeak your confidence in them.

AUSTRIA

Food situation in Vienna and Lower Austria catastrophic; fats, meat, milk, vegetables available only on black market at exorbitant prices. Cattle reduced 70%, pigs 90%. Soap, clothing, bedding, medical supplies nonexistent; infant mortality 20-27%. Undernourishment and lawlessness increasing and widespread.

GERMANY

Foodstocks dwindling; daily rations 1550 calories or less; infant mortality at least 25%; rickets, tuberculosis rampant. No new clothing or footwear; acute shortages of soap, fuel, medicines. 5 to 10 million refugees are being expelled from former German provinces, Poland and Czechoslovakia, and forced to live in makeshift dwellings, bomb-shelters and barracks. City populations crowded into cellars and the few habitable quarters that escaped destruction.

HUNGARY

Famine conditions in Budapest; no fats, no flour, no milk. Country swept bare of crops, machinery; livestock 60-70% gone. Most babies still-born; infant mortality 42%. Abandoned children begging and looting; "infant criminality has attained undreamed-of proportions". Fantastic inflation: $1 U. S. equals 6.7 million pengoes.

POLAND

Main food 12-16 ozs. bread and 16-20 ozs. potatoes daily. Practically no meats, fats, sugar; ¼ pint milk daily for children under 3. Children 30% infected with tuberculosis; infant mortality 25-30%. Population decimated: 12½ million dead or deported as slave laborers; in Warsaw and other cities women said to exceed men 7-1; 450,000 orphans. Cattle reduced 70%; agriculture disorganized. Hospitals 70% destroyed; medicines, bandages lacking. Clothing, shoes critically short.

Give freely and gladly. What we Americans do as private citizens powerfully undergirds our Government's measures to avert world-wide famine. For this is peacemaking: to feed the hungry, to comfort the fatherless, to give courage and hope to the brokenhearted. It is the work of all men and women of good will in America to reach out helping hands and to express their will for peace in terms of sacrificial deeds of kindness.

GI Housing Subsidies Seen Losing Ground

The Administration was given slight chance last night for Senate committee approval of production subsidies to speed veterans housing.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee, which is expected to bring the veterans emergency housing bill to the floor this week, will meet today to consider the form the measure will take.

Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt has asked that 600 million dollars for production subsidies which was struck out of the Patman bill in the House be put back in the Senate.

The House also struck out price ceilings on existing homes. Considerable sentiment for including this in the measure which goes to the Senate has been evidenced in committee.

After the Senate complete action on the veterans housing bill, the long range Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing measure will be brought to the floor, Senate leaders said.

CAB Monopoly Given Airlines, Bradley Claims

Congress has "shirked its responsibility" by not granting steamship firms the right to engage in overseas air transportation, Representative Fred Bradley (R., Mich.) declared yesterday.

Speaking on a radio forum from Station WINX, Bradley charged the Civil Aeronautics Board with creating "a virtual monopoly" by granting overseas rights to only three American airlines.

The CAB, Bradley continued, "has denied our United States Merchant Marine participation in overseas aviation while granting permits to 12 other nations to land their sea-aircraft in the United States—thus driving the American Merchant Marine off the high seas."

Former Congressman Joseph E. Casey, now chairman of the Airlines Committee on United States Air Policy, defended the CAB on the forum.

Under CAB policy "the United States airlines have developed overseas flying to such an extent that today the United States leads all other nations combined in the field of international aviation."

He said aviation "should not be made auxiliary or subordinate to any other form of transportation but should be independent."

Foreign Nations Get 825 Millions In U. S. Credits

The Department of Commerce reported last night that the United States Government advanced 825 million dollars in credits to foreign countries in the fourth quarter of 1945.

The department said this represented a "substantial increase" over previous lending activity. It noted, however, that one billion, 311 million dollars in unusued credits had not been drawn upon December 31.

The report listed these credits extended by the Export-Import Bank in the last three months of 1945:

France, 550 million dollars; Belgium, 100 millions; Netherlands, 50 millions; Mexico, 20 millions, and Finland and Saudi Arabia five millions each.

The bank also extended 95 millions in additional credits to various countries for the purchase of cotton.

The bank announced yesterday the signing of an agreement for a 25 million dollar loan to Italy to finance the purchase of raw cotton in the United States.

Civil Service May Cut Out Asking 'What Was Your Rank?'

The Civil Service Commission is going to see whether it can't get along without asking people who want Government jobs what rank they had in the armed forces.

Many veteran and labor groups protested two weeks ago, after The Post reported this question was being asked on a new Form 57—the basic bank filed out by a job seeker. About 1,300,000 jobs now held by temporary workers are to be filled through the civil service in the next year, and the new Form 57 is being used to fill them.

The Commissions said the data about rank was to help tell the aplicants' general ability and his right to disability preference. Commissioners denied rank as such would have any bearing on who was hired.

Just the same, the commission was sending the Form 57 of eligible persons to the officials who actually hire them—with the rank information filled in—and the commission did not attempt to promise that these officials would not lean in favor of a major or against a seaman second class.

A delegation of the United Federal Workers of America called on the commission last Friday to renew their union's protest against form 57. L. E. Tempest, UFW executive vice president, said yesterday he had a letter from Commissioner Arthur S. Fleming which said:

"We are inaugurating an immediate study to determine whether it is essential to have this information (about rank) in order to pass on claims for disability preference. This study will be completed just as quickly as possible. If we determine that the information is not needed in order to establish disability preference, we will revise the question so that the information is no longer called for."

Alexandria Set To Contract For GI Homes

A contract for installation of an unspecified number of demountable homes for veterans in Alexandria will be signed tomorrow night at a conference between representatives of the Federal Public Housing Authority and Alexandria officials.

Slated to participate in the conference in the City Council chamber are Mayor William T. Wilkins, City Manager Carl Budwesky, representatives of the Citizens' Postwar Planning Committee, officials of the Alexandria Housing Authority and representatives of the Federal Housing Agency.

The citizens' planning committee, which has strongly supported the veterans' housing program, is asking for 300 units for former servicemen. However, it has not been determined how many of the prefabricated dwellings are to be allocated to the city.

Under terms of a resolution adopted by the City Council last week, the Alexandria Housing Authority will act as agent for the city in the negotiations with FPHA. A stipulation of the proposed contract requires that the housing operated by the local housing authority on a nonprofit basis.

The homes, to be brought from nearby Government installations where they were used during the war, will be installed by FPHA on land provided by the city. Several sites, made available by the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad on a dollar-a-year basis, have been tentatively selected as the housing site.

In Brother's Arms

Noah Beery, Film Badman, Dies at Party

Hollywood, April 1 (AP).—Noah Beery, sr., veteran movie badman, died today a few hours after helping his younger brother, Wallace, celebrate his sixtieth birthday.

Noah Berry, Sr.

Noah succumbed in Wallace's arms. He was 63, and had suffered for several years from a heart ailment.

Death occurred on his two-week vacation from a Broadway play, "Up In Central Park," in which he had the role of Boss Tweed.

The birthday celebration, an annual affair featuring a cake with one candle, jointly honored Wally's birthday anniversary today and another brother, Will's sixty-sixth birthday next Friday.

Noah gave Wally and Will his usual gifts—several neckties.

Noah was in movies approximately 30 years. His best-known role was that of the brutal Sergeant Lejaune in "Beau Gesta" who set up his dead comrade's bodies about the parapets of a besieged desert fortress and stood off the tribemen's attacks.

Wallace and Noah last appeared together in "This Man's Navy" in 1945.

Noah's other pictures included "The Sea Wolf," "The Spoilers," "The Passion Song," "The Isle of Lost Ships," "David Harum," "Our Fighting Navy," "Girl of the Golden West," "Mexicali Rose" and "Isle of Missing Men."

Game Refuge Is Abolished In House Bill

By the Associated Press.

The House yesterday passed legislation calling for the abolition of the Parker River National Wildlife Refuge in Essex County, Mass.

The measure, by Representative Bates (R., Mass.), now goes to the Senate.

Under the terms of the bill, lands acquired by the Department of the Interior in establishing the refuge, would be returned to the former owners. The land, approximating 12,360 acres, was acquired by eminent domain.

The legislation directs the Secretary of Interior to notify the former owners that their property will be reconveyed to them upon payment of an amount equal to the purchase price paid by the Government.

At hearings on the measure, held several months ago by the House Agricultural Committee, Massachusetts officials contended that the maintenance of the refuge would constitute a "serious" health menace to the people of the area.

The refuge also includes extensive clam flats that have been seized by the Government. Ernest W. Barnes, Massachusetts marine biologist, said at the hearings that to establish a waterfowl refuge in the area "would be to threaten the very existence of the clamming industry, upon which many persons depend for a livelihood."

Thieves Unequal to Safe

House Passes Bill Giving State Vote To Armed Forces

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill designed to aid States in getting absentee ballots to servicemen for the congressional elections.

The measure would abolish the Federal "bobtail" ballot which authorized overseas servicemen in 1944 to vote only for President and Vice President. It would require the armed forces to help distribute State ballot forms and allow them to go through the mails postage-free.

Chairman Herbert C. Bonner (D., N. C.) of the House Elections Committee told the House that there now is "plenty of transportation" to get State absentee ballots to servicemen throughout the world. Therefore, he said, it was decided that the Federal ballot is no longer needed.

Brooklyn's Owen Jumps to Mexican League

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., April 1.—Sentiment raised its head in baseball today when Clark Griffith gave homesick Third Baseman Gil Torres permission to visit with his wife in Havana and return to the club "when you feel better."

POVICH

Torres was granted his request to return to Cuba despite the fact there is a third base crisis on the Washington club. Manager Ossie Bluege, after viewing his other third base candidates, had settled upon Torres as the man to open the season at the position.

But today the Cuban infielder begged off. He pleaded the illness of his wife who is an expectant mother and his inability to settle down to the job of playing baseball since the accidental death of his 5-year-old son, Gilberto, jr., last November. The Torres lad died suddenly after being struck with a baseball bat in a kid game in Havana.

"I will do the team no good now," said Torres to Griffith and Bluege. "I do not like to quit, but I am feeling sad about my wife and my boy. I think of him too much when I see the sons of the other players on the field before the game. I will play bad ball if I stay. Maybe I will feel better and I will come back. I think so."

Ordinarily, Griffith would have brushed off the appeal of a ballplayer to return to his home for no better reason than the uncritical illness of his wife or grief over a child whose death occurred nearly five months ago. But he willingly made the exception in Torres' case.

The Nats' owner has a high regard for the tall, slender Cuban whose father used to catch for Washington when Griffith was a manager. A week ago, when it was reported that Torres had delayed reporting to the Nats because he was ready to jump to the Mexican League, Griffith was undisturbed.

"I don't believe Torres will jump our club," said Griffith, "he's too high-principled a fellow. I know he had offers from Mexico, but he gave me his word he would report to our club. He's not the type to mislead me in a matter like that."

A few days later, Griffith's confidence in Torres was justified when he reported to the Washington club. But the Cuban has been a sad figure in the Nats' camp, and his grief has been apparent. He has shown none of his former dash or eagerness to make good.

His Cuban comrades on the Washington team point out that Torres is an emotional fellow. "After his boy died, he tried to play ball in the Cuban winter league," said Catcher Mike Guerra, "but he was no good. He used to be a star in the winter league, but in January the last-place club in the league gave him his unconditional release because he was making too many errors. We knew he was feeling bad."

"Losing my boy was too sudden," said Torres. "One day he is playing ball with me and two days later he is gone. My wife and I do not like to think he was born to die like that. We blame ourselves, perhaps because we did not take care. I think we did take care, but now we do not know. I wanted him to be a ballplayer like his grandfather and myself."

Torres was persuaded by his friends to play ball in the Cuban winter league in an attempt to assuage his grief. "I don't know what happened in December and January in that league," said Torres. "I don't know where my mind was. I can't remember playing ball, but they said I did.

"I didn't care what happened when ground balls were hit at me. I had no enthusiasm for playing ball and my club released me. I did not want to come back to Washington, but Mr. Griffiith asked me to play, and I said I would try. I do not want to let Mr. Griffiith down. Maybe I can still play for him if I feel better."

Torres did receive attractive offers from the Mexican League. Before he left Cuba, the Pasquels finally offered him $36,000 on a three-year contract, plus living expenses, with half the money to be deposited in a Havana bank before the season started.

"I did not want to play ball in Mexico, though," said Torres. "All my life I wanted to play in the big leagues. I was in the minor leagues in the United States for 10 years and last year I got my chance to play on a big league team. That is the only kind of baseball I want. When I go back to Cuba I will try to feel better and come back to the Washington team. But now, I am upset, and that is why I go home wih Mr. Griffith's permission."

Two Bowie Marks Fall In Opener

Bernard Seroy's Hillyer Court proved the easiest kind of a winner in the Bayard Purse and paid a $3.70 mutuel. The son of Ariel crossed the finish line five lengths in front of the closest opposition in a field of nine.

Washington-owned horses chased the winner to the wire. Edward D. Talbert's One Only was second with a daylight margin over Gustav Ring's Prefect. The winner, fresh from a series of victories during the winter, which included the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, was clocked in 1:45.3 for the mile and 70 yards over a track labelled fast but in the slow condition as is stock equipment at Bowie.

Hillyer Court, who failed to win a race last year, was superbly handled by Jockey W. L. Johnson. The four-year-old never gave his rivals a chance to catch him. He went out of the starting gate on top, opened a god lead and was well in hand at the finish. One Only chased the ultimate winner, made several attempts to get to him, but was a driving second, beaten off at the finish. Prefect was sluggish in the early running but closed some ground to show a good effort.

Late Time, the sensational winner of the first race, was making her first start of the season and was under the handling of Jockey Carson Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md. The filly had won her last effort at Charles Town last December, her only victory of 1945. She won by a length over G. C. Greer's Poochanelli, with R. Driscoll's Celestial Blue third. Goldie's Suger, ridden by Jockey Bobby Bernhardt, was making the f ourth start in two years, never having been close. She is a daughter of Golden Vein, one-time popular Bowie horse.

Crowd Topped Twice

The size of the crowd has been topped at the Prince Georges track only by two Thanksgiving Day gatherings, 1938 and 1939. Although the roadways into the track have been widened, there was a traffic jam before the races that lasted for an hour and two hours after the program cars were still leaving the track.

Short price horses, in addition to Hillyer Court, were the Bobanet Stable's Regained, winner of the third event for maiden 2-year-olds, at $6.20; E. A. Helsing's Ksar of Audley, winner of the fourth at $8.40, and G. C. Greer's Cash O'Boy, winner of the eighth race at $4.30. Cash O'Boy, an 11-year-old, had to survive a claim of foul before his victory was complete.

Jockey C. Quattlebaum, who rode John Hunnicutt into second position, made the objection against the winner for an alleged foul in the stretch. Cash O'Boy, coming from last place, lugged in and bumped his rival. However, the stewards, after conferring with Jockey S. Clark who rode Cash O'Boy, allowed the result to stand.

Race Fans Crowd Roads, Jam Traffic

Bowie, April 1 (AP).—Many fans missed as much as half of the opening day program at the Bowie race track today as hundreds of automobiles were strung out for four miles along the road leading into the oval from the Washington Boulevard.

Traffic regulations were disregarded as impatient motorists, pulling out of the single lane to form a double line of traffic, snarled up with Washington Boulevard-bound cars.

It took some mitorists an hour and a half to go the last eight miles to the track.

Standing Room Only at Bowie—And Not Much of That

PART OF THE CROWD of 21,000 race fans who jammed Bowie yesterday for the first racing since 1942 is shown in this shot from the strip. It was one of the largest turnouts in the oval's history. Perfect weather marked the program, though there's doubt whether everyone had a good time. The feature race was won by Hillyer Court, the favorite

A's Win, 5 to 1

Brunswick, Ga., April 1 (AP).—In their first stop on a barnstorming trip with Baltimore, the Philadelphia Athletics today defeated the International Leaguers 5 to 1 in an exhibition baseball game.

Russ Christopher and Luther Knerr handled the big league mound chores with Knerr taking the rap for the only Oriole tally. Baltimore, with Righthander Al Barillari working the whole game, made five bobbles.

Dodgers Win, 5-3

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 1 (AP). With Stan Rojek at second base as the replacement for the ailing Billy Herman and Lew Riggs remaining as the injured Pete Reiser's successor at third base, the Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Jersey City International League team, 5-3, today.

Hal Gregg pitched seven innings for the Dodgers and allowed only two hits, both singles. He fanned 7 and pitched to only 21 batters, a double-play being executed after each of the widely separated singles. Ralph Branca finished for the National Leaguers and yielded five singles in the ninth to give the Jersey City team all its tallies.

5-Million Gate Seen

Louis-Conn Ringside Tickets Set at $100, a New Record

New York, April 1 (U.P.)—Promoter Mike Jacobs today set a top price of $100, highest in boxing history, on tickets for the heavyweight championship fight June 19 between Joe Louis and Billy Conn.

At $40 more than Tex Rickard charged for the Dempsey-Willard fight at Toledo, the previous high for ringside tickets, Louis and Conn may draw a gross gate of five million dollars with motion picture, radio and television rights included.

Jacobs

Jacobs said that orders for more than one million dollars worth of tickets already are on file.

Yankee Stadium, which will seat more than 100,000 fans on June 19 will have a ticket scale ranging from $10 to $100. Prices will be $10, $20, $30, $50 and $100, tax included.

All these seats will be reserved. A section of unreserved seats, priced at $6.00, will be placed on sale the day of the fight.

Tickets have not yet been printed, Jacobs said, but applications are being accepted if accompanied by money order or certified check. Requests will be filled in order of their receipt, he said, and tickets will be sent by registered mail when they are available early in Mary.

Largest gate in history was the second Tunny-Dempsey fight at Chicago which drew $2,658,660.

Petersburg Track Team Short-Handed

Petersburg, Va., April 1 (AP).—Petersburg High School will send a track team largely dependent upon a limited number of last year's men for its scoring power against John Marshall in the opening meet of the season for the Petersburg squad Saturday.

Coach Bob Kilbourne has Wallace Cash, experienced in the 100, low hurdles, broad jump and high jump, as one of the few athletes with some experience. Cash left school and served with the Marines. He returned to school last summer after being discharged and was with the basketball squad the past season.

Of the athletes with the squad last spring, Frank Scott, specializing in the 100 and 200 and Tex Cowles, also a dash man and candidate in the weights, are ready for duty.

For other events, Kilbourne must call upon new men who have shown sign sin drills of responding rapidly to instruction.

British Open First Race Year Since '38 at Carholme

Lincoln, England, April 1 (AP).—Great Britain's first full flat racing season since 1938 opened at the Carholme Track with Gordon Richards, England's greatest jockey who has more than 3000 wins, scoring a double.

Richards won the Welbeck Handicap Plate at 5 furlongs with Golden Sorrel taking the Greetwell Plate at 7 furlongs with On Your Fancy.

Crowds slept in railroad station waiting rooms and hotel lobbies in order to attend the six-race card.

Falco, McGriff Meet in Bout

Tony Falco will fight Jimmy McGriff, local kayo king, in the feature attraction at Turner's Arena next Tuesday, April 9. The bout will be nine rounds.

Falco, piloted by Lou Viscusi and Bill Gore, hails from Hartford, Conn.

McGriff was to have fought Domingo Russell tonight at the Arena, but the card was cancelled when Matchmaker Gabe Menendez was unable to secure a suitable opponent.

Signs With Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., April 1 (U.P.)—Vic Kulbitski, former Minnesota and Notre Dame fullback, signed a 1946 contract today with the Buffalo team of the All-America Football Conference.

Brownies Trade Byrnes to Yanks For Ken Sears

Beaumont, Tex., April 1 (AP).—The New York Yankees announced today they had traded Catcher Ken Sears to the St. Louis Browns for Outfielder Milt Byrnes.

Byrnes, who batted .249 in 133 games with Browns last year, will join the Yanks in Dallas on Thursday. Sears, who went into the service in 1943, had trained with the Yanks in Panama and at Bradenton, Fla. He currently is at Fort Worth, Tex., where he was called by the illness of his wife.

The Yanks also announced the sale of Second Baseman Tony Sabol to the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League.

Chicago Youth Named W.-M. Tennis Captain

Williamsburg, Va., April 1 (AP).—Bert Rance, lanky Chicago net star, has been elected captain of the William and Mary tennis team for the second year. He served as captain of the 1945 squad.

Rance, now 20 years old, began his tennis career at the age of 15 in Chicago. He and a companion copped the Illinois State scholastic doubles title in 1942 and 1943.

A year later he and Bob David, also of Chicago, won the Junior Doubles Championship of Chicago and weer ranked the top junior doubles team in the western association.

Ex-Redskin Barber Signs As Grid Yanks Line Coach

New York, April 1 (U.P.)—The New York Yankees of the All-America Football Conference completed their coaching staff today by signing Jim Barber, former Washington Redskin tackle, as line coach.

Barber played seven seasons with the Redskins under Coach Ray Flaherty before entering the Navy in 1942. Flaherty now is head coach of the Yankees with Jack White as his backfield assistant.

Barber

While in the Navy, Barber played one season at Great Lakes in 1942, became athletic officer at the United States Naval Training Station, Faragut, Idaho, after being commissioned, and last year served as line coach of the Fleet City Bluejackets at Camp Shoemaker, Calif. He was a collegiate star at the University of San Francisco.

Barber was discharged from the Navy Last Saturday as a lieutenant.

Sorry Hurling Irks Bluege; Two Released

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., April 1.—Manager Ossie Bluege of the Nats, already annoyed by a third-base condition, today was sadly scanning a new sort spot—the failure of too many pitchers to round into something resembling starting form.

Bluege not only see little to enthuse about in the pitching of Sid Hudson, Walter Masterson and Marino Pierretti in training camp to date, but now is genuinely concerned about their ability to start winning at the opening of the season. With each passing week in the South, Bluege is feeling grateful for the presence of such dependables as Roger WWolff, Dutch Leonard and Mickey Haefner, his big three of last season. It has been a dismal performance by most of the others.

Appleton Released

Veteran Pete Appleton is the latest to get his unconditional release by the Nats. He got notice today. Appleton, who is 40, is undecided about his future. He doesn't want to pitch in the minors and he is toying with the idea of jumping to the Mexican League, teaching school, or organizing a band. He is a talented pianist. Pitcher Bill Lefebvre, who was also released, expects to catch on with the Minneapolis club.

Wildness has been the chief complaint against Hudson, Masterson and Pieretti and too many times when they have been getting the ball over the plate they have been ineective. Bluege is sharply revising his pre-season estimates which include that trio as starting pitchers.

Nor has Rae Scarborough been particularly impressive. Like the others he has displayed a lack of control. Bluege, however, is more tolerant of Scarborough, a curve baller, than of the fast-balling trio of Hudson, Masterson and Pieretti.

Face Loss of Job

There's no excuse for them not getting the ball over the plate by this time," declared the Nats' manager with some heat today. "They have got to buckle down to work or they won't have regular jobs. There are too many other pitchers who can get the ball over."

The 40-year-old veteran Johnny Niggeling is destined for more frequent starting jobs than in the past, Bluege indicates. "Johnny looks as if he's fit this season after his stomach operation, and he'll always give you a good game when he's feeling right," said Bluege. "He wants to work oftener than once a week, and I think he will."

Among the rookies, Bluege is counting on Vernon Curtis and Southpaws Max Wilson and Bill Kennedy to challenge any backsliding veterans for regular jobs. Particularly does he like the possibilities of Curtis and Wilson and, showing his digust at the wildness of other, he added. "They can get the ball over."

Pitcher Larry Brunke has changed his mind about quitting and will report back to Chattanooga since getting a salary increase . . . Cuban Pitcher Oliverio Ortiz, who is highly regarded by Bluege, will definitely stick with the club . . . Tomorrow the Nats play Indianapolis at Tinker Field . . . Bluege is not satiffied with the hitting of Jeff Heath but is tolerant of the big fellow's slow start, and declares that Heath will be in the opening-day lineup . . . With Gil Torres returning to Cuba for an indefinite stay, Bluege's third base problem has been aggravated and he is expected to beseech Owner Griffith to make new attempts to land a third baseman by trade . . . Neither George Myatt nor Sherry Robertson represents Bluege's idea of a regular third baseman . . . In fact, Bluege already had indicated that he considered Torres by far the best of the lot.

An Olympic Fund

Stockholm, April 1 (AP).—Sweden's Olympic Committee has set aside $87,000 to support the country's participation in the 1948 Olympics in London, it was announced today.

Gets $12,500 Bonus Plus 5-Year Pact

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 1 (U.P.)—Mickey Owen, a top catcher, today gave Dodger fans their biggest heartache since he dropped a third strike in the 1941 World Series, by jumping to the big money Mexican League as player-manager.

Owen

Brooklyn President Branch Rickey, Ruefully acknowledged the loss, saying Owen had signed a five year contract and had been given a bonus of $12,500.

At Sampson, N. Y., where Owen received his discharge from the Navy today, he said he had agreed to manage the Terreon, Mexico, club.

"If the contract has no flaw, it's Mexico for me," he said.

Owen said he wired Rickey that he could "stall them off no longer."

"I'm going to Mexico later in the week to make arrangements," he said.

He emphasized that he wanted to be certain that the Mexican terms were all that they had been represented to be.

The loss was a bitter blow to the pennant hopes for the Dodgers. The 29-year-old veteran, released only today from the Navy at Sampson, N. Y., was an astute handler of pitchers and had been counted on for heavy duty.

Rickey said Owen sent him a telegra mthat he had accepted the oer and was through with organized baseball in the United States.

With Owen gone, Manager Leo Durocher will have to decide between a war-time holdover, Mike Sandlock and a rookie, Dixie Howell.

Rickey developed Owen in the St. Louis Cardinal farm system. The Dodger boss calls him "son" in direct conversation. He called him by his given name, Arnold, in discussing him with writers.

Owen's darkest moment in baseball occurred in the 1941 World Series against the Yankees in the fourth game. Hugh Casey threw a sharp-breaking curve past Tommy Henrich for the third strike and what would have been the third out. But the ball got away from Owen and Henrich reached first safely. Given new life, the Yankees put on a rally which won the game and then went on to win the series the next day.

It was the second time the Dodgers had been "raided" of a star player by the free-spending Pasquel brothers who are lining up an impressive array of major-league talent for the Latin loop. Luis Olmo, hard-hitting outfielder from Puerto Rico, was taken. He had been tabbe das the regular left fielder. A rookie infielder, Roland Gladu, up from the Montreal farm club of the International League, left when Olmo did.

Gordon Brooks Skippers Boat To New Mark

Havana, April 1 (AP).—Sped by brisk northeasterly breezes, the schooner "Sea Gypsy," skippered by Gordon Brooks of New York today set a record in the thirteenth annual St. Petersburgh-Havana yacht race.

The 78-foot boat, biggest of 21 entries, trimmed one hour, 25 minutes and 35 seconds off the previous record set by the yawl "Good News" in 1940. The "Sea Gypsy's" time was 35:50:25 compared to the former record of 37 hours and 16 minutes. The sleek craft entered Havana Harbor at midnight last night.

Second boat to sweep past the finish line off Havana's Morro Castle early today was Albert H. Veeder's "Jacinta," 57 - foot schooner. The "Jacinta" also beat the 1940 time record by 13 minutes and 46 seconds with an elapsed time of 37:02:14 and corrected time of 35:07:36. Veeder is from Chicago.

The sloop "away," owned by Harlow N. Davock of Birmingham, Michigan, took top honors in Class A although she came in fifth. Away's elapsed time was 39:42:45 and corrected time 34:01:06. "Starlight," 44-foot cutter of James B. Brickell of Miami, winner of her class in 1938, finished sixth in the race and second in Class A. Her elapsed time was 40:22:30 and corrected time 34:36:13.

The 44-foot cutter "Den-E-Von," owner by Ed Spence of St. Petersburg and sailed by W. M. Denning, won the honors in Class B and Fleet handicap. "Den-E-Von's" elapsed time was 41:51:05, corrected Class B 41:51:05 and corrected Fleet 32:46:14.

Up to 3 p. m. (EST) today, all but six of the boats starting the race had dropped anchor in Havana Harbor.

The Cuban ketch "Joven Rita," one of the six still at sea, was reported to have pulled into Garden Key in the Dry Tortugas. All aboard were said to be safe. No reason for the stop was given but it was believed rough seas forced the 34-foot Cuban craft, making its first race run, to seek port.

Gets Top Weight

New York, April 1 (AP).—Buzfuz, consistent 4-year-old in the Sunshine Stable barns, drew topweight of 126 pounds today in the handicappings made by John B. Campbell for Saturday's Paumonok handicap at Jamaica.

The Sports Trail:

Marquard Made Only $1800 The Year He Won 19 Straight

By Whitney Martin

New York, April 1 (AP).—One of the last men with whom we talked in Miami was a big, raw-boned guy with a rugged pan and his head cocked to one side, giving him a continual quizzical, "mebbe so" expression.

We had never seen Rube Marquard before but we would have recognized him from his pictures.

The pitcher who won 19 consecutive games for the New York Giants in 1912 still looks much the same as he must have looked then.

Marquard

For some 15 years now he has been a mutuel clerk at race tracks, quite satisfied with his lot, and although you gather that he would have liked to hook up with some baseball team as coach or in some other capacity if he had had the chance, he "ain't mad at nobody."

Rube was born a generation too soon, financially speaking. If he were pitching today he'd probably be drwaing $25,000 a year or more. The highest salary he ever received was $8500 a year, and the year he won 19 straight he got just $1800.

The big guy was in the major leagues 19 years, most of the time with the Giants. When he left that club it was to go to Brooklyn in a deal he made himself.

"I had tonsilitis," he explains, "and the Giant doctor told John McGraw. McGraw was pretty grumpy about it, and I told him I hadn't said anything about being sick, that it was the doctor. Anyway, I asked McGraw if he'd give me permission to make a deal for myself, an dhe said to go ahead.

"I sold myself to Brooklyn for $7500, and in the first series with the Giants beat them twice and I understand McGraw was willing to give $15000 to get me back.

"There was one team I always could beat just by throwing out my glove. That was Pittsburgh. I remember that one day McGraw asked me if I was ready to go against the Pirates, and I told him to get me one run, that's all.

"I was pitching against Babe Adams, and we went until the 18th inning without a score. Then both teams scored a run, and I finally won out in the 21st inning, 2 to 1. Afterward McGraw told me I had said I could win with one run. I told him sure, in a nine-inning game, but we were going into the third nine-inning game."

Marquard says he never had a sore arm in his life. His arm eventually just wore out, losing its elasticity much as an aging rubber band. He says the modern pitchers baby themselves too much.

"We used to pitch around 60 games a year," he says. "We'd condition ourselves by developing our wind and legs. Nowadays, the pitchers think only of their arms. We'd get our wind and legs in shape by running, and the arms would take care of themselves."

Rube, still lean and erect at 57, stands 6-feet-3-inches, but says he was the "little guy" of his family, which consisted of five children, the shortest being a sister 6-feet-2½-inches. He still looks like a pitcher, too, and we have an idea that if he was coaching on a club, he'd have the chuckers running around the park until the tongues of their shoes hung out.

But there isn't much chance of that. He's quite happy, thanks with his family and his job. And he just sells tickets on the horses—doesn't buy them.

Virginia Gold Cup To Be Renewed at Warrenton May 4

Warrenton, Va., April 1 (AP).—The renewal of the annual timber classic, the Virginia Gold Cup, will be held Saturday, May 4, at the Broadview course here.

A program of four races will be presented—the Virginia Gold Cup, 4 miles over timber; Fauquier plate, 1½ miles over hurdles; the Fox Hunters Steeplechase, 3 miles over timber, and the Land Owners Race on turf, 1 mile on the flat.

Crisfield Boasts Two Semipro Teams

Crisfield, Md., April 1 (AP).—Two semi-pro baseball teams will play here this season—the Crisfield Vets of the Central Shore League, and the Bob Cats, an independent nine.

J. Ellis Taes, Vets manager, announced today he had signed Outfielder-Pitcher Eugene Stant of Wilmington, Del., to play Sunday ball only with the club. Stant, under the name of Jack Stanley, was with the Federalsburg A's in the Eastern Shore League from 1937-1939.

Chick Garibaldi Meets Michaels on Mat

Chick Garibaldi, the baby member of the noted Garibaldi wrestling family, will meet Eddie Michaels, the pro footballer who spends his winters wrestling, in a 30-minute match on tomorrow night's card at Turner's Arena.

Headlining the show are Natie Brown, local heavyweight, and George (K. O.) Koverly, the Hollywood, Calif., villian, who clash in a rematch by popular demand.

Jamson Signs as Golf Pro At Quantico Officers' Club

Al Jamison signed as golf professional at the Quantico (Va.) Officers Club yesterday, a nine-hole course at the Marine base 38 miles south of Washington.

Jamison resigned from the Postal Accounts Division of the GAO, where he worked in Asheville and the local office for the last three years, to return to his favorite profession. He has been a member of the Professional Golfers Association for the last 16 years.

Jamison, a 38-year-old native of Wilmington, Del., will take over his new post next Monday. Part of his job will be to assist in the development of nine additional holes.

Known as one of the foremost teachers and stylists in this section, Jamison has served with six local clubs in 21 years in the gold profession. He started at Wilmington, Del., when he graduated from the caddy ranks and has also filled an assistant's job at the Indian Creek Club in Miami.

Locally he worked as an assistant pro at Bannockburn, Army-Navy and Kenwood before graduating to his first head projob at Indian Spring. He left the Four Corners Club when it was reduced to nine holes to move to Bradley Hills, a promising venture at the time. His last local post, teaching pro at East Potomac, temporarily terminated his golfing career as he entered the government when the club closed in January, 1943.

Just as Jamison was about to cash in on royalties from a new model iron clubhead he patented in 1941, a lack of steel cancelled production. He has hopes for the future, however, on his invention which he claims will be revolutionary to iron club play.

Jamison, known as "The Hat," which he wears constantly to hide his prematurely bald head, signed a contract for a year around job at Quantico. His predecessor was Dick Dickerson, while Alan Burton, a former pro now with the Post-office Department, also held the job at one time.

Never a national threat but a consistently good home pro golfer, Jamison has held a title for the past six years he will hold for a lifetime. In 1939 he won the Cumberland Centennial Pro-Amateur title with George Tew, a title the pair will hold until 2039.

Col. Winn Reelected Head of Turf Body

Chicago, April 1 (AP).—Col. Matt Winn, 84-year-old executive director of Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., today was reelected president of the American Turf Association at its annual meeting. The organization controls Churchill Downs and Douglas Park racing establishments at Louisville and Lincoln Fields at Chicago.

Hamp.-Sydney Eleven Cards Nine Games

Hampden Sydney, Va., April 1 (AP).—A nine-game football schedule will be played by the Hampden-Sydney Tigers during the 1946 season, athletic director and Head Coach Frank L. Summers announced today.

Summers said the Begals would open their campaign September 28 with the University of Virginia at Charlottesville and would end the season November 23 in a battle at Death Valley with Sewanee.

Six of the nine games will be played away from Home. Four newcomers have been added to the schedule. Teams which the Tigers have not played in recent years which appear on the 1946 slate are Davidson College, Western Maryland, Washington College and the University of the South (Sewanee).

The Hampden-Sydney athletic director said the Tigers would end their spring practice sessions on Friday, April 12, with a squad game composed of two elevens selected from the squad of 30 prospects now drilling daily.

The 1946 schedule:

September 28, University of Virginia at Charlottesville.
October 5, Washington and Lee at Lexington; 12, University of Richmond at Richmond; 19, Randolph-Macon at Hampden Sydney; 26, Davidson College at Davidson, N. C.
November 2, Western Maryland at Westminster, Md.; 9, Washington College at Hampden Sydney; 16, Randolph-Macon at Ashland; 23, University of the South (Sewanee) at Hampden Sydney.

Woodberry Prep Wins Cage Trophy

Glens Falls, N. Y., April 1 (AP).—Emerson High of Union City, N. J., won the championship and Woodberry Prep School of Orange, Va., won the consolation trophy in the Eastern States Basketball tournament here.

Emerson whipped Boys Catholic High of Trenton, N. J., 56-55, in an overtime period to win the title.

Charlie Peterson, Woodberry forward, poured in 13 points to lead the Virginians to a 36-29 triumph over Durham, N. C., high school for the consolation honor.

The games were played Saturday night.

Not Disturbed

Ott Grim Over Trio's Departure

Miami, Fla., April 1 (AP).—Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants was grim but not too disturbed today after the departure of three players who quit to play ball for bigger cash south of the border, down Mexico way.

Ott didn't seem to fear any more kangaroo hops to the chili circuit, but indicated that some of the offers had been tempting.

John (Bud) Kerr, 23-year-old Giants' shortstop for the past two seasons, disclosed that he had turned down an offer of $55,000 for three years plus a $5000 bonus from the Mexican syndicate.

Ott was at least mildly smouldering about the three who jumped camp.

"If that's the way those three felt, I'm glad to be rid of them," Ott said.

Ready to Leave

The trio—Second Baseman George Hausmann, First Baseman Roy Zimmerman and Pitcher Sam Maglie—were ready to leave at once by train (Seaboard 8 p. m., EST.) en route to Laredo, Tex., where they will sign their Mexican contracts.

"And pick up a nice fat bonus for signing," said Maglie. "That bonus, I might say, is more than my salary would have been this entire year with the Giants."

The three players grinned when asked if they realized that they might be declared "outcasts" and consigned into exile so far as organized baseball in the United States is concerned.

"I guess Mel Ott is pretty sore about us going, but he's all wrong about feeling sorry for us," Maglie commented.

Ott declared the loss of the trio, summarily dismissed by President Horace Stoneham of the Giants last night after they admitted they had been negotiating with the Mexican baseball league, wouldn't bother the team.

Barred From Field

The Giants' wrath was highlighted by the fact that when the Mexico-bound trio called for their duds, they were barred from the field. Their equipment was dumped unceremoniously on the floor of the gatehouse.

Hausmann, the only Giant to play every inning of every game last year, said he had agreed to sign with Don Jorge Pasquel's Mexicanos at $13,000 a year for three years plus a $5000 bonus and traveling expenses.

Meanwhile, Sports Editor Guy Butler of the Miami Daily News predicted that "organized baseball (in the United States) is in for a pretty rough time unless it agrees to recognize the Mexicans and concede them a rather high standing on the baseball ladder.

Tigers-Spiders Open Tomorrow In First of Virginia's Games

By the Associated Press

Hampden-Sydney's Tigers and the University of Richmond Spiders will battle each other at Richmond tomorrow afternoon in a contest that should certainly send the 1946 State College diamond season off to a rousing start.

This will be the first encounter of the current week for State college teams. Hampden-Sydney Coach Frank Summers will depend on the pitching tricks of Freshman Jack Parris of Staunton and the catching of Joe Elmore of Alberta.

Coach Mac Pitt of the Spiders will start either Frog Burdette, lanky West Virginia right-hander, or Leo Garrett, of Richmond, against the Tigers. Behind the plate for Richmond will be Charlie Ktanitzky.

Both coaches are planning to use many of their prospects in order to get a line on their players under actual game conditions.

Virginia Tech makes a two-day trip into North Carolina, meeting the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill on Friday and Duke at Durham on Saturday.

Coach Gus Tebell's University of Virginia Cavaliers also see action twice. They entertain the Roanoke Business College at Charlottesville Friday and journey to Lynchburg Saturday to meet the Class B Piedmont League Cardinals.

Last Saturday's game between Virginia Tech and the University of Ohio scheduled for Blacksburg was canceled because of rain.

This week's State college spring sports program:

Baseball

Wednesday—Hampden-Sydney at Richmond.
Friday—Roanoke Business College at University of Virginia; Virginia Tech at North Carolina.
Saturday—Randolph-Macon at William and Mary; Virginia Tech at Duke; Virginia at Richmond; Elizabethtown at Bridgewater.

Tennis

Friday—Kalamazoo at William and Mary.
Saturday—Kalamazoo College at Virginia.

V. M. I. Finishes Spring Grid Drills

Lexington, Va., April 1 (AP).—Virginia Military Institute's Keydets packed away their football togs for the summer today.

The Keydets wound up several weeks of spring practice Saturday when Coach Pooley Hubert put his candidates for the 1946 eleven through a stiff scrimmage despite a muddy field.

After the drills were over, Coach Hubert expressed satisfaction at the way his team is shaping up. He was particularly well pleased with the Keydet backfield, which includes two 1945 stars, Lynn Chewning and Bob Thomason.

Willard Marshall Set for Release

Bainbridge, Md., April 1 (AP).—Sergt. Willard Marshall, slugging leftfielder of the New York Giants, is being discharged at the Marine separation center here and probably will get his final papers "in about 48 hours," the Bainbridge Naval Station Public Information Office reported today.

The office said Marshall had been in contact with the Giants and probably would join the team within the next few days.

Lt. Jerry Flynn Named Navy Publicity Head

Annapolis, Md., April 1 (AP).—An official Navy spokesman disclosed today that Lt. Jerry Flynn, Rochester, N. Y., had been appointed athletics publicity director for the Naval Academy.

He is expected to report to the Academy April 10 or 11. He succeeds Lieut. William Sullivan, who was discharged from the Navy in January.

point to remember IN CITY PLANNING

WIDENING STREETS AND INCREASING PARKING SPACE HAVE LIMITATIONS

SINCE automobiles carry an average of 1.75 persons each, the space required to house each vehicle nearly equals that required to house each worker in our downtown buildings.

This means that two buildings for one would be needed to provide adequate downtown parking facilities for all potential automobile users.

Widening streets has similar limitations. How much more practical to plan in terms of moving people rather than vehicles. Street cars and buses carry more people in less street space . . . and they create no parking problems.

An invaluable service can be rendered the community by stressing the desirability of increasing transit travel - your transportation - particularly in off-peak hours.

Girl Soon to Leave Navy Service Yearns For Home, After Six Years' Absence, but Dreads Mother's Restraint on Her Actions

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I shall be 24 next July and in another week I shall terminate 25 months' war service with the Navy, after which I should love to return home, as I have been away from my loving parents for six long years. But I don't believe I can face the same scenes over again that I always have with mother, when I go out for an evening's entertainment.

I have provided my own living since 1940, the year I graduated from high school; and now my parents are up in years,—my mother 55, my dad 64. I have spent two leaves with them in the past two years; and during each leave mother and I argued profusely about her belief that I should stay home at least five nights a week, to read a good book or "get something into my head."

The other two nights, if I'm to go out, I should be home by "a decent hour," says mother. According to her, that means 12 midnight, not 1 o'clock in the morning. During my last leave, I went out two evenings that week, and stayed out until 2 a. m. Service life is keyed to rules and regulations and I thought a change from clock-watching while on a date would do me good.

On Last Leave They Had Words

WHEN I got in, mother was furious. We argued, of course. She said she was losing too much sleep due to my hours and that father would be unfit for work next day. This has gone on for years, in spite of my proving that I can be on my own and keep my self respect, as I certainly have. I feel I can take care of myself, as I have a level head and in fact seem a few years older than my age (for which I am sorry sometimes). I never drink to excess and have never come home intoxicated.

However, mother calls me "cheap" for "staying out late" and has said, "With such an independent air, you and I could not live under the same roof." My father usually remains silent during the arguments, but when the time comes to take sides, he falls in with mother.

I know they love me and feel they are doing the right thing for my health and future; but I am young and have youth's point of view, which I think deserves some consideration. Am I asking too much? In case I don't go home, I can stay with a married sister until I find another job away from home. Do let me hear from you soon. D. R.

Independence Has a Price

DEAR D. R.: From my view, you are a girl who wants to have her cake and eat it, too. Now that you are legally of age, with six years' successful experience at being self supporting, you are properly entitled to consider yourself emancipated from parental authority. On the other hand, your parents' home is theirs, not yours, now that you have taken yourself off into the world as an independent adult.

Having outgrown the age of natural or legal dependency, and having lived apart from them for years by choice, to go back to them now is to go in the guise of guest—which carries a binding obligation in courtesy to conform to the rules of the house (their house) and otherwise respect the wishes of your host and hostess while there. If you refuse to subscribe to that obligation, if you can't adapt to their fixed notions, if you look upon their authoritarian views as unreasonable interference with your private rights and self respecting preference, then by all means stay away.

Baits Mother To Severity

YOUR mother's stipulation of five evenings in seven spent at home with a good book is absurd, of course. Also, she deports herself badly in calling you "cheap for staying out late." But possibly you brought this severity upon yourself by wanting, and trying to run away with, too much rope in pre-adult years. If your disposition had always been to strike the happy compromise, she might have leaned unconsciously to a habit of kindly accommodation, too.

On your last leave, for instance, it would have been well to get in by 12 midnight, since that's what she asked; and to have done it in a laughing spirit of, "All for love of you, dear mummie." In staying out until 2 a. m., you were rudely defiant to no purpose. There was no profit in that show of independence. On the contrary, it boomeranged to spoil your visit. Why can't you discipline yourself to please her, if you wish to be close to her for a time, when after all you took Navy rules and regulations in stride to keep out of hot water?

Rings On Their Fingers

Jones—vom Orde

Maj. Gen. Alan Walter Jones, USA, retired, and Mrs. Jones announce the engagement of their daughter, Jule Hallie-Jessie, to Lieut. Ewald Arnold vom Orde, jr., USMCR, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. vom Orde of New Brunswick, N. J.

Miss Jones was graduated from Punahou Academy in Honolulu, in the centennial class of 1941. She was a member of the postgraduate class of National Cathedral School, Washington, and was graduated from Middleburg College, Vermont, in June, 1945. Since that time she has been a research assistant at the National Bureau of Standards.

Lieutenant vom Orde attended Middleburg College and was graduated from Dartmouth. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. At present he is attending the Marine Officers' School at Parris Island, S. C.

The wedding will take place in May.

Miss Virginia O'Rear

O'Rear—Short

Capt. George M. O'Rear, USN, and Mrs. O'Rear of Washington and New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Louise, to Lieut. Robert Allen Short, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Short of Massena, N. Y.

Miss O'Rear, granddaughter of the late B. C. O'Rear of Rome, Ga., is a descendant of Gen. Artemus Ward of the Continental Army. She attended Bishop's School in La Jolla, Calif.; Gunston Hall and was graduated from Holton Arms in 1943. She later attended Bryn Mawr College and is now studying for an operatic career in New York.

Lieutenant Short, who has returned from two years of service in the Pacific, is a graduate of Clarkson Technical College. No date has been set for the wedding.

Hummer—Emery

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Eugene Hummer announce the engagement of their daughter, Martha Jean, to Kenneth George Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Turner Haines Emery of Hyattsville, Md.

Miss Hummer is a senior at George Washington University and a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Emery is attending the University of Maryland after having been discharged recently from the service. The wedding will take place in June.

Mitchell—Gokey

Mrs. William A. Mitchell of Alexandria, Va., announces the engagement of her daughter, Ann Hubbard, to Midshipman Noah Webster Gokey 3d, USN, son of Capt. and Mrs. Noah Webster Gokey 2d, of Arlington, Va.

The bride-elect is daughter of the late Brigadier General Mitchell, USA. The wedding will take place early in June.

Mrs. G. D. Hammond

Hammond—Williams

Miss Florence Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Capt. Charles David Williams, USNR, and Mrs. Williams of Washington, exchanged marriage vows March 30 in St. Alban's Church with G. Denman Hammond, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Waters Hammond of Atlanta, Ga. The Rev. Charles T. Warner read the service.

In the absence of her father, who is on duty in China, the bride was escorted by Capt. Emmett O'Beirne. Her white satin gown was fashioned with fitted basque, marquisette yoke, bustle and long train. The long veil of Brussels lace and illusion fell from a coronet of rosepoint lace and her flowers were orchids, freesia and sweetpeas. She carried a lace handkerchief carried by the bridegroom's mother at her own wedding.

Miss Cynthia Ann Williams attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Thomas Turner and the Misses Ann Hanford, Camilla Goldsborough and Margaret Pritchard.

Lieut. Thomas Taylor Hammond served his brother as best man. Ushering were James Newsome, Carlton Lindsay, John Rhys Davies and Willie Jones Long, jr.

The bride attended Yale University and the University of Mexico and was graduated from George Washington University in 1945.

The bridegroom, who served as a cadet in the Navy's medical program, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina.

The couple will live in Philadelphia, where Mr. Hammond will continue his studies at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

Ida Jean Tells How to Banish Beltline Bulge

By Ida Jean Kain

By and large, the average man is fairly nonchalant about his ever-expanding beltline. A "corporation front" is regarded as evidence of big business. That is why it sets me up to get requests for trimmer-downers from men who are concerned about the beltline slipping its moorings.

As a matter of general information, your chest should be at least 5 inches larger than your beltline. When the two are equal, you're in bad shape. And when the beltline exceeds the chest measurement, you're headed for trouble, and no April fooling! A longer beltline means a shorter lifeline.

This corporation front is the penalty of excess fat and flabby muscles, plus gravity. There are just two things to do about it: Stop overeating to belt bulging proportions in order to get your weight in the vicinity of normal, and take enough exercise to tone the important muscles forming the abdominal wall. Even golfers need exercise to keep these muscles toned. Eight to 10 minutes of calisthenics will do the trick.

Lie Flat on Your Back

But you can skip the old one of bending over to touch fingers to toes. That's no great shakes as an exercise, and with relaxed abdominal muscles it's better to take your conditioners from the position of flat on the back on floor. In this position there is a minimum of weight bearing, and exercise can be taken without strain.

Position: Flat on back, right knee flexed, other leg straight down.

Movement: Bring left knee forcibly up toward chest, keeping the other knee flexed, foot on floor. At the same time, pull up and in strongly with the lower abdominal muscles, digging the small of the back against the floor. Repeat eight times, slowly, with action.

Movement: Give a vigorous twist at waist, slowly lower thighs to touch floor on one side, then t-w-i-s-t at waist, lowering thighs to floor on opposite side. Center all action on waist muscles.

Finally, from the position of lying flat on back, legs down, arms extended on floor overhead, come up to a sitting position without taking heels off floor. With lower abdominal muscles pulled up strongly, bend over and touch fingers to toes. Lower to floor and repeat 3 times, later 10 times, slowly.

But the most important exercise is to push firmly away from the table before you overeat. Even exercise isn't a match for excess calories.

If you wish more exercises, send for the leaflet "Waistlines and Beltlines," enclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. WILLIAM F. HARRIS, who before her marriage in St. Alban's Church on Saturday was Miss Jeanne Glennon, daughter of Capt. James B. Glennon, USN, and Mrs. Glennon. She is the granddaughter of the late Rear Admiral James Glennon, USN, and the late Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, USMC. Her husband, Lt. Col. Harris of the United States Marine Corps, is the son of Maj. Gen. Field Harris, USMC, and Mrs. Harris

Fields—Strine

In the Bethesda, Md., home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strine, her brother and sister-in-law, Miss Elizabeth Anne Strine, became the bride of Jerome A. Fields of New York on February 22. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard F. Strine of this city. After a honeymoon in the Shenandoah Valley, the Fields will live in Washington.

Burke—Degnan

St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, was the scene March 17 of the wedding of Miss Mary Ellen Degnan to Lieut. Donald T. Burke, USNR. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Degnan, is a graduate of George Washington University. Lieutenant Burke, son of Mrs. Patrick Burke of Madison, Wis., is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

Mahorney—Strait

Miss Barbara R. Strait, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Strait of Augusta, Kans., was married in the Cherrydale Baptist Church of Arlington, Va., March 23 to Colon L. Mahorney, son of Mrs. Robert Kilby of Arlington.

The bride wore white slipper satin with finger-tip veil and carried gardenias on a white prayer-book. Her attendants were Miss Anne White and Miss Iva Easley.

Milton E. Elliott, jr., served as best man, and Delos and Eugene Fairman were ushers.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Belling the Cat

PRESIDENT—Ladies, now that we have completed the statement on our stand on the use of nuclear energy in dishwashing, our next step is to present it to the Commission in Charge of Twentieth Century Atoms. I will appoint a committee to call on the chairman, Mr. Stalactite.

Mrs. Hare—Madam President, it will be impossible to get access to Mr. Stalactite. We will do well if we get in to see the assistant chairman, Mr. Crag.

Mrs. Piney—My maid knows the Stalactite's yard man. I might be able to make a contact.

Mrs. Smirky—If we could just get through to Mrs. Stalactite——

Mrs. Tower—I am opposed to such indirection! This is a free country and this is the Atomic Age. We should demand to see the chairman.

Mrs. Joyner—Ladies, we have to be realistic, even in the Atomic Age. We cannot afford to antagonize the men on this commission.

Mrs. Smirky—Yes, you catch more flies with molasses——

Mrs. Flint—I rise to a point of order.

PRESIDENT—Mrs. Joyner, will you act as chairman of a committee to present our statement of principles to Mr. Stalactite, or Mr. Crag or whatever member of the commission you can get to?

Mrs. Joyner—Madam chairman, I would be glad to serve on such a committee, but frankly I don't think I'm the type to be chairman. We need a woman who will appeal more to the type of men on the commission.

Mrs. Preen—May I inquire what type of men are on the commission?

Mrs. Stepp—They're men who regard all women as either stenographers or wives.

Mrs. Hack—We should have a very smart looking woman as chairman—someone like Mrs. Sleek.

Mrs. Joyner — Just a minute. Much as I admire Mrs. Sleek, I don't think she would serve on this committee. She's too modern looking.

Mrs. Tower—But this is the Atomic Age. These men are in charge of atoms.

Mrs. Stepp—Just twentieth century atoms, remember. Scientifically speaking, this is about 2046.

Mrs. Tower—Then we should dress and act that way.

Mrs. Smirky—But you have to use the womanly approach in any age.

Mrs. Wiggle — Men always respond to a smile.

Mrs. Flint—I rise to point of order.

MRS. STEPP—Girls, frankly what we need is a sweet looking little woman in a flower hat, who also has a brain. As chairman, she will have to speak well when she presents our statement.

President—Mrs. March, have you a flower hat?

Mrs. March—Ye-es, but I never could face Mr. Stalactite—even if we got to him—or even Mr. Crag, or Senator Tweet, or any of those men. They'd look me over as if I were a nice little woman who didn't know what she was talking about. You need some one with more self-confidence.

Mrs. Smirky—But not too much.

Mrs. Tower—I can't see why at a time like this with the future of our dishwashing at stake, to say nothing of our lives, we can't barge in on these men and talk things over as man to man—that is, person to person. We act as if we were back in the nineteenth century.

Mrs. Stepp—What made you think we weren't?

Mrs. Joyner—Girls, we must be realistic.

PRESIDENT—Is Mrs. Lark back in town? She has a beautiful voice.

Mrs. Hack—But Mrs. Lark is a singer.

Mrs. Smirky—Why couldn't she give a solo before we present our statement of principles? We always have music at our club programs.

Mrs. Joyner—Mrs. Lark is a charming woman, but she hasn't been to our club for months. We need someone who can speak with conviction on this matter.

Mrs. Hack—Mrs. Spellmaster!

Mrs. Joyner—She's too earnest.

Mrs. Preen—Remember, we must have a woman with a good figure.

Mrs. Wiggle—And nylon hoisery.

Mrs. Smirky—And a flower hat.

Mrs. Joyner—And a lovely voice.

Mrs. Preen—And an ingratiating smile.

Mrs. Stepp—Madam Chairman, we are getting nowhere. I move that we appoint a board of strategy to arrange for our group to get to the atom committee, and that we engage a stylist, a speech teacher, and a charm expert to prepare a committee to present our statement of principles on atomic dishwashing.

Chorus—Second the motion!

Alexandria Votes Today In Primary

Nominees for nine Alexandria city council seats, including six ward representatives and three councilmen-at-large, will be chosen in the annual Democratic primary today.

Two other city officials, both unopposed, also are seeking renomination. They are City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast and City Tax Collector C. Page Waller.

Seventeen candidates, including all incumbents, have filed for the council. Nomination is considered tantamount to election in the traditionally-Democratic community. Polls will open at 5:51 a. m. and will close at 6:32 p. m.

Interest in First Ward

Although contests are slated in all but one ward, principal interest centers on the race in the newly-created first ward, which occupy the area formerly serving as by the first and second wards. Incumbents Thomas Hulfish, of the first ward and Paul L. Delaney, of the second, are both seeking the new seat, and are opposed by a third candidate, former Army Sergt. Raymond A. Gallagher.

There is no contest in the new second ward, where Charles L. Nash, a newcomer to local politics, i sthe only candidate. The new ward occupies about half the territory formerly designated as the Sixth Ward.

Mankin Opposes Ewald

In the Third Ward, incumbent John J. Ewald is opposed by former Councilman Ernest L. Mankin, whom he defeated two years ago. Fourth Ward Councilman George K. Bender is opposed by R. L. Fox. In the Fifth Ward, Lieut. Col. Everett A. Hellmuth, incumbent, and Marshall J. Beverley are seeking the nomination. In the Sixth Ward, Councilman Edward W. Downey is opposed by William Sellyers.

Five candidates are seeking the three nominations for council-at-large. They are Mayor William T. Wilkins, John W. Tulloch and John A. Logan, incumbents, and Walter S. Smith and J. C. Crump. Under Alexandria election laws, the candidate for councilman-at-large who polls the highest vote in the June election is declared mayor.

Short Measure Ice Cream Cases To Be Tried Today

The cases of two retail dealers, charged with selling short-measure ice cream are scheduled to come up in Municipal Court today.

The cases were postponed for two weeks by Judge Thomas D. Quinn when they were brought into Municipal Court March 19. At that time, one of the defendants, Samuel Steinberg, proprietor of the Courthouse Pharmacy, 3d and E sts. nw., was required to post $50 collateral.

The second defendant, Harold Hemminger, proprietor of Harold's Ice Cream Shop, 1788 Columbia rd. nw., posted $50 collateral on the charge at the Thirteenth Police Precince March 16.

Charges were preferred against the two dealers after a survey of establishments selling ice cream by a Post reporter and an inspector from the Department of Weights, Measures and Markets.

Russian Couriers Refuse to Step Off Plane in Ireland

Limerick, Erie, April - (AP).—Two Russian couriers who said they were carrying dispatches of the utmost importance from Moscow to Washington, refused to leave an airliner during the refueling at Shannon airport late Saturday night.

Airport authorities said regulations provided that all passengers leave planes during refueling, but after a conference with airline officials it was decided to let the couriers remain. They gave their names as Leonid Konline and Andre Saviskonov, and said they had been instructed not to leave the plane.

Maryland Teachers Oppose Inclusion in Social Security

By the Associated Press

A spokesman for three Maryland school teachers' organizations urged yesterday that the Social Security program not be broadened to include teachers.

Milson C. Raver, executive secretary of the Maryland State Teachers' Association, said groups representing 95 per cent of the teachers in the State "are unalterably opposed to having Social Security extended to cover State and local employes now covered by local retirement plans."

He told the House Ways and Means Committee, which is making a study of the entire Social Security program, that he spoke for the public School Teachers' Association of Baltimore and the Maryland Educational Association, as well as for his own group.

Extension of Social Security to workers now covered by State retirement plans "would ultimately force the State to choose between the two systems," he said.

"Nothing could be more damaging to teacher morale than to render uncertain the status of their retirement systems as would result from giving the electors of the State a choice between their present plans and a less benefical system . . .

"If continuing to teach is to mean a prospective State legislative battle over the retention of the local retirement systems, most teachers would rather not teach."

Raver said aonly 70 of the approximately 9000 teachers in the State are not covered by the State retirement system.

The National Farmers Union urged that the Social Security law be broadened so as to bring all farm people under the old age survivors insurance programs.

Russell Smith, the farm organization's legislative secretary, told the committee such expansion "is now wholly practicable."

He said that farm people were left out of the law 10 years ago because it was then thought that their coverage oered peculiar ad- argued, experience shows that thmey now can be included.

PENNY

WHY DON'T YOU JUST ASK YOUR MOTHER IF YOU MAY COME OUT TONIGHT PENNY?
DON'T BE QUAINT, ELSA!
IF I ASK HER IF I MAY GO OUT SHE'LL SAY, DO YOUR HOME-WORK, GOING OUT SO MUCH INTERFERES WITH YOUR STUDIES!
BUT IF I SAY I'VE DECIDED TO GIVE UP ALL MY SOCIAL LIFE AND GIVE MY WHOLE ENTIRE TIME TO MY BOOKS···
SHE'LL SAY, WHY DON'T YOU GO OUT FOR A WHILE, DEAR? YOU'VE BEEN STUDYING TOO HARD.

HM-M--ANOTHER PEDDLER! I'LL GET RID OF HIM QUICK!!
WANNA BUY A BROOM?
DO I LOOK LIKE A PERSON WHO'D WANT TO BUY A BROOM?!!

Area Veterans Due to Reach East Coast

The names of the following from Washington, D. C., were telegraphed directly to The Washington Post by the Associated Press. There is no assurance that the list is correct, because it was compiled in Europe and at Pacific bases previous to embarkations, but officials said that the margin of error is slight. Relatives should not contact the port or The Washington Post for further information.

After tests in all makes of cars, under all kinds of driving conditions—

BY A SMASHING 19 TO 1 VOTE

equal or superior to extra-priced gasolines

Car dealers really know gasoline performance. So we asked 2097 of them to test Dynafuel against leading extra-priced gasolines. After tests in all makes of cars, here's how these experts voted:

1168 SAID DYNAFUEL PERFORMED "BETTER"
822 SAID "JUST AS GOOD"
ONLY 107 SAID "NOT AS GOOD"

19 to 1 that Dynafuel is equal — or superior — to extra-priced gasolines!

HIGH-TEST PERFORMANCE . . . WITHOUT HIGH-TEST PRICE!
